Only the shell remains

The shell of the old turntable can be seen east of the railroad yard in Chaffee. In the early part of the century the turntable was used to shuttle steam engines into 15 stalls in the Frisco roundhouse, which was located in the background. Tracks ran from the turntable to each of the 15 stalls which were used for repairs on the engines.

In 1950, the Frisco Railroad roundhouse was converted from a steam engine to a diesel shop, reducing the number of engines it could serve from 15 to five. The original building was constructed between 1905 and 1910.

Chaffee roundhouse is now just a memory

By ARIZOLA MAGNENAT

What happens when an era is over? There may be unfulfilled dreams or talk of how good things used to be, but one thing is certain — life goes on.

Sometimes the only remnants of bygone days are in the memories of those who lived through an era. O. E. Rigdon, or "Stuffy" as he is known by most of the people in his hometown, is one person who can bring back to life the ruins of one era.

The old Frisco Railroad roundhouse in Chaffee is only a pile of scattered rubble to a casual observer, but not to Stuffy. In 1970, he retired after 45 years of working as a machinist in that roundhouse.

Stuffy, now a youthful-looking 70, looks back on his life in the town where he was born and has lived with an apparent sense of satisfaction.

In the year Stuffy was born, 1905, an advertisement appeared in a newspaper, called "The Review", that streets and sidewalks had been completed in Chaffee and a new Frisco terminal station(which is still in use) and general offices were nearing completion. the buildings were located on 150 acres of land given for a terminal by a real estate company in the town.

During the next few years the roundhouse and turntable were completed. By the time Stuffy went to work for the railroad in the 1920s, there were stalls for 15 steam engines with tracks running from the turntable to each stall and 100 men working in the roundhouse. This did not include the car department, which refurbished train cars from top to bottom and employed 150 men.

Several groups were working simultaneously: hot work, whichwas emergency workdone on engines in service; deadwork, consisting of work on engines taken out of service for major overhauls; a machine shop which had 10 machinists making parts such as pins, bushings and other specialized equipment; the boiler-maker gang, which did most major

USDA moving to correct flaws in grain inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell said today the grain export inspection system is plagued by many inherent problems, but that the Department of Agriculture has uncovered them and is moving to correct them.

Without mentioning specific allegations of corruption that have been made about the system used to inspect grain before it is shipped to foreign purchasers, Campbell said the problems must be "overcome to improve the integrity of our national grain inspection system."

Campbell testified before the Senate subcommittee on foreign agriculture policy, amid allegations that wheat and other commodities sold to foreign countries are being mixed with dirt and debris.

The subcommittee joins at least four other investigations looking into the foreign commodity trade, focusing on bribery among federally licensed inspectors whose approval is needed before the shipments can leave U.S. ports.

Campbell substituted for Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who is in South America this week.

A spokesman for the subcommittee said the panel was primarily concerned with determining how extensive the problems are, although it would look into grading standards used to classify the grains and the manner in which the commodities are handled on the docks.

"Are there a few bad apples in the barrel or is the barrel so rotten that it contaminates all the apples that get in?" he asked.

The Departments of Justice and Agriculture, the Internal Revenue Service and one other Senate subcommittee are investigating the handling of grain as it moves from the farm belt to cargo ships.

The probe began in New Orleans, the nation's biggest grain shipping port. There have been 15 indictments in New Orleans and five in Houston as a result of various federal investigations.

However, Harlan Ryan, chief grain inspector at the port of New Orleans, denied that dirt is intentionally added. He said foreign buyers can purchase any grade of grain and specify its cleanliness. Most purchase lower grades because they're cheaper, he said.

Farmer robbed 2nd time

DUDLEY--A prominent Stoddard County farmer was robbed at gunpoint at approximately 11:30 Wednesday night for the second time in less than a month.

The Stoddard County sheriff's department said two white males came to a door of the Glenn Harrison home, located on Route one, and asked for some gas. When Harrison went out to get the gas a third man pulled a gun and the three handcuffed him.

Taken in the burglary was a 1975 white over red Cadillac and approximately $200 in cash.

Positive identification has been made, but no arrests have been made at this time, officials said.

Masked robbers also took $1,000 in cash, a $25,000 savings certificate and numerous personal items from the Harrison residence in an earlier armed robbery which occurred approximately three weeks ago. That burglary was also conducted by three men who handcuffed the entire Harrison family and held them captive in a bedroom while they ransacked the house.

Weather program scheduled

In an effort to recruit new members and inform the general public on weather watching, the Weatherspotters of Sikeston are sponsoring a public meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Security National Bank community room.

The program will feature Don Semancik, official in charge of the National Weather Service station in Cairo, Ill., who will address the group and show slides on tornadoes and severe thunderstorms.

The general public and citizens band radio club members are requested to attend. For more information, interested persons may contact Howard Overton, commander of the Wetherspotters at telephone number 471-4916.

Arson suspect bound over

BENTON — James Gillespie, 27, of St. Louis, charged with setting a fire at E. C. Robinson Lumber Co. in Sikeston on April 16, was bound over to appear in Circuit Court on July 10 by Judge Lloyd Briggs following a preliminary hearing Wednesday in Scott County Magistrate Court.

Two other St. Louis men, Harold Simon, 24, and Robert Elbert, 23, were ordered released by Briggs.

Larry Linnemeyer, a state fire marshal who made the initial investigation of the alleged arson, was the first person to testify Wednesday, saying that in his opinion the fire was of an incendiary origin.

He said he found sawdust by the wall that had been burned which smelled of gasoline.

The fire itself caused only minor damage. Linnemeyer said the fire had burned only about three and a half minutes, and that it had to be caused by some kind of flammable liquid splashed on the surface.

The other two witnesses who testified Wednesday were Lt. Jack Patterson, head of the criminal investigations division of the Sikeston Police Department,and Sgt. Dan Hinton, a Sikeston police detective.

When he was notified that night of the attempted arson, Patterson said Simon had already been apprehended and he took a statement from him in which Simon said he didn't know anything about the fire, but saw the flames and a man named Willie Thomas coming back to the car. He said he saw a police car coming and ran.

Patterson said police didn't find anyone named Willie Thomas, but did find Gillespie and Elbert hitchhiking north on Interstate 55. Hinton and Patterson stopped the two and asked them where they were headed. They told the officers they were going back to St. Louis and that their car had broken down.

The officers arrested the two for the attempted arson and took statements from them. Elbert told Patterson they had left St. Louis about 9 p.m. and had purchased some gasoline in Miner, then drove on into

10 motorist hurt, 2 seriously

Two Bernie men were injured in a truck-train collision at 1:55 p.m. Wednesday at Bernie and eight more persons were injured in three other area accidents, the highway patrol announced today.

Owen Jones, 54, of Bernie, driver of a pickup truck, was seriously injured and a passenger Thomas Tucker, 53, of Bernie received moderate injuries when Jones pulled his westbound truck onto the railroad tracks at Hunt Road in Bernie and into the path of a Cotton Belt train.

A.E. McCoy, 59, of Pine Bluff, Ark. was the train engineer. The injured were taken to the Dexter Hospital.

In a two-car accident at 10 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 49, one-fourth mile north of Piedmont, three Piedmont residents recived were moderate injuries.

A car driven north by Betty Woods, 36, of Piedmont ran off the shoulder, came back onto the road and hit head-on a southbound car driven by James Skaggs, 76, of Piedmont, resulting in injuries to the Woods woman, Skaggs, and a passenger, Ruth Skaggs, 73, of Piedmont. The injured were treated at Wayne Medical Center in Piedmont and transferred to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Marion DaVault, 69, of Lutesville was seriously injured and Beverly Burns Cutsinger, 27, of Glen Allen sustained minor injuries when their cars collided at 7:05 a.m. Wednesday, one-fourth mile west of Lutesville.

The highway patrol said DaVault made a left turn into a private drive in the path of the Cutsinger car that was traveling east.

Both were taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

At 8:20 a.m. Wednesday on Route A, three miles west of New Hamburg, Steven Mark Huey, 19, of Chaffee, driving east, lost control on a curve, ran off the road, overturned and came to rest upright in a pasture. Huey and two passengers, Alvin Howell, 23 and Ranae Howell, 17, of Delta sustained minor injuries which did not require treatment.

Correction

In Wednesday's edition of The Daily Standard, a price of about $5 per bushel was incorrectly reported for last year's wheat crop in the cutlines describing a picture on page 1. The $5 figure was the price of soybeans, not wheat. The correct figure for last year's wheat crop at this time was $4.26 at the river and $4.18 at the Sikeston rail point of Scott County Milling Co.

Twiggs convicted of rape

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) — A jury has found a Cape Girardeau man guilty of raping a 12-year-old girl last December following a trial that lasted only 12 hours.

After deliberating 15 minutes, the jury delivered its verdict Wednesday night against Joseph Lee Twiggs in Cape Girardeau County Circuit Court.

Judge Byron Kinder of Cole County, presiding after the Cape Girardeau County circuit judge disqualified himself from the case, said he would give the defense 30 days to file for a new trial before pronouncing sentence.

A defense of insanity had been used in Twiggs' behalf.

Former Cape man dies in storm

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — A former Cape Girardeau, Mo., man was the victim of fierce winds that stirred up deadly dust and stinging sands Wednesday, the California Highway Patrol said.

Troopers in Kern County, near Bakersfield, said Bobby Joe Sisco, 35, of Hollywood, was killed in the storm after he was trapped in the back seat of a car when it rammed a truck in the blinding dust.

Troopers said the driver and another passenger fled uninjured, but Sisco was killed when a second truck plowed into the rear of the crippled auto.

More than a dozen others were injured in a series of accidents during the storm, which sprang without warning.

Fire destroys Cape firm

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Fire struck a building supply company in this Southeastern Missouri city today as authorities were investigating another fire at a similar business the morning before.

An early morning fire at the Lehming Lumber and Sawmill Co. today caused considerably less damage than the blaze that struck Wednesday morning at the Southeast Builders Supply Co., which is two blocks away.

Firemen said a debarking machine was the only major item damaged in today's fire.

Authorities said arson was suspected in the blaze at Southeast Builders which destroyed buildings valued at $125,000. The cause of this morning's fire has not been determined.

Railroad strike threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration says "everthing must be done" to prevent a nationwide railroad strike threatened to begin at midnight Sunday.

The administration called the prospect of a strike "a matter of deepest concern" after the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks announced Wednesday that contract talks were deadlocked and that strike preparations were under way.

But beyond further efforts by federal officials to mediate the dispute, there is little the administration can do. All legal delays have been exhausted and only enactment of emergency legislation by Congress could block the threatened walkout.

Union President C.L. Dennis blamed the impasse on railroad management and said "nothing in the picture at this time suggests we will be able to avert a strike." He scheduled a news conference for today to discuss his union's position.

Dennis earlier had rejected an agreement signed by seven other railway unions providing for wage and benefit increases totaling 40.7 per cent over three years. A union spokesman said the agreement failed to deal with special problems and needs of the railway clerks.

A 60-day cooling-off period imposed by President Ford under the Railway Labor Act expires at 12:01 a.m. Monday, and the clerks will be legally free to strike then.

It is expected that picket lines manned by the 117,000 clerks would be honored by most of the nation's 300,000 other railroad employes. Sources indicated the union may exempt bankrupt lines from the shutdown, including the Penn Central and Rock Island.

With the nation just beginning to recover from its worst recession since World War II, a strike could have crippling effects, particularly industries such as steel and coal which are heavily dependent on the railroads, and farming areas.

"Everything must be done to prevent it, certainly at this particularly crucial period in our economy," declared W.J. Usery Jr., chief of the Federal Mediation Service and the President's top labor troubleshooter.

Usery was expected to step up efforts to resolve the dispute.

THE B-1 BOMBER
(Part II)

There has been considerable to-do as well as misunderstanding over the projected costs of the B-1 bomber, which is scheduled to roll off the assembly line early in the 1980s. Current plans call for production of 240 of the versatile bombers to replace our aging fleet of B-52s.

The most important value factor, however, too often is overlooked. This was emphasized in a recent Washington press conference by Major General H. M. Darmstandler, coordinator of Air Force activities related to the B-1.

"The cost of a weapon is not the essential thing," said General Darmstandler. "The key thing is the value of that weapon in maintaining deterrence. How much are the American people willing to pay to keep a nuclear attack unthinkable?"

We could not agree m ore with General Darmstandler. At the same time, however, dollar cost is understandable a consideration in these tough economic times. But even on that score, we believe the B-1 deserves high marks.

It is true that the projected cost of the B-1 program through 1984 is $20.6 billion — about double the $9.9 billion estimate in 1970 when the program began. Opponents of the program would like the American public to believe those extra billions are simply cost overruns by the manufacturer.

Untrue. It should come as no shock to any American to learn that nearly all of the "extra" money, or about $9.6 billion, will go purely for inflation. Subtract the inflation to date and you will find that the program's cost has increased less than 12 per per cent during the five years since it began in 1970, and much of that represents improvements over the original design. In major weapon systems programs, that is a superior performance.

The Pentagon estimates that the final cost per plane will be about $84 million, including spare parts, research and development, and ground support equipment. That is a lot of money by any calculation.

As General Darmstandler pointed out, however, the B-1's real value can only be calculated on the basis of its ability to help deter a nuclear war. From every indication, this magnificent aircraft shows every promise of doing just that.

ECONOMIC CROCUSES

AFTER a season of especially severe economic weather, we are seeing the first crocuses of a new economic spring come into bloom. They are the early and tentative signs of a change in the economic season (it's best not to take the snow tires off your car the first time you see a crocus in the lawn) but I do take them seriously as indicators that better weather lies ahead.

New orders booked by manufacturers increased in February, after a six month steady decline. Inventories are gradually being brought into line with current levels of business volume—a process which holds down production schedules while it is going on, but which is by its nature self-terminating. Retail sales are slowly recovering. Leading indicators have turned up.

Statistics of this type are notoriously erratic from one month to the next, and it would be foolish to build an optimistic picture on evidence as thin as this. Of more fundamental significance is the fact that surprisingly rapid progress has been made in moderating inflation. Wholesale prices have actually been falling since last November. Consumer prices have continued upward but the rate of increase in the first two months of 1975 has been only about 8 per cent per year—compared with 12 per cent for all of 1974.

Most observers refuse to see this curbing of the inflation rate as a particularly optimistic sign. They concede that it is desirable in itself but they also regard it as an indication of the deeply depressed state of the economy.

There is truth in that observation, but it may miss the main point. Inflation, in effect, reduces the purchasing power of buyers. The obverse of that rather obvious observation is that any progress toward curbing inflation helps to support the buying power of the public and hence to improve the state of business.

Some simple calculations reveal that the amounts involved in that process are tremendous and throw everything else in the shade. Total income of persons is in the neighborhood of a trillion dollars a year. Thus, a mere one percentags point reduction in the rate of price increase protects about $10 billion of consumer purchasing power from goind gown the drain as a result of inflation.

What has already been achieved in the way of curbing inflation during the past three months has contributed more purchasing power to the American public than the tax reduction of $23 billion just enacted by Congress. It has done so without producing the adverse side effects of the federal deficit financing necessitated by the tax cut. We may expect further improvements in purchasing power as inflation slows down further this year.

What we see going on in Washington is somewhat reminiscent of the pagan priesthood in ancient times. The priests were convinced—and convinced their congregations—that spring would not come unless they performed the proper rites, incantations, and sacrifices at the prescribed times. Since they conducted these religious observances every year, and since spring did indeed come every year, experience seemed to support their claim.

Our economic priesthood in Congress and the Administration have been busy performing their customary duties of guaranteeing recovery from the recession by enlarging the budget deficit. They may be barely in time, since the first crocuses of economic recovery were already pushing through the ground before they had completed their work.

The analogy with the activities of pagan priests breaks down, however, in one important particular. If the priests did no good in assuring the coming of spring, they at least did no harm.

The hasty, almost panicky, activities of government policy makers this year have been aimed at preventing the recession from becoming a cumulative downward spiral. But that was never a serious danger. In any cyclical downturn our economy generates forces which in due course bring the downturn to an end. Excesses and mistakes of the past are eliminated—a painful process, it is true, but one that does not last forever.

The real danger is not in the present cyclical situation. It lies in the longer run more deep-seated impact of government on the economy. Enlargement of the size and scope of government deprives the private economy of needed resources for full vigorous growth. Heavy taxation and heavy demands on financial markets for financing deficits remove funds that would be otherwise available for providing the productive facilities that will be required to provide jobs and products. The apparently irresistible tendency of government to reach into the private market system to regulate its activities is a constant threat to the process of natural economic growth. These things affect, not so much the turn of the seasons in our economy, as the prevailing economic climate.

And so, although we are seeing the economic crocuses, I am not so sure that we will see, after a reasonable interval, rose-growing weather. And, unless there are some reversals in national policy, the next economic winter may come earlier, and be more severe, than the one now ending.

REALISM VS. MORALS IN FOREIGN POLICY

What place should moral principles have in the conduct of a nation's foreign policy?

At a time when Americans are concerned about the future direction of their country in the light of the bitter Vietnam experience, at a time when the "dirty tricks" of the Central Intelligence Agency-which some critics allege extended to the attempted or contemplated assassination of certain foreign heads of state—are the subject of official investigation, the question is far from a rhetorical one.

All governments claim to act from moral principles, of course, but the question has a special relevance for Americans, according to Charles Frankel, professor of philosophy and public affairs at Columbia University.

This is because, he writes in "Morality and U.S. Foreign Policy," a booklet recently published by the private, nonpartisan educational Foreign Policy Assn., unlike most other nations "made by God or history," the United States "declared itself a nation by an act of explicit political self-construction, by a deliberate compact into which people entered by announcing their allegiance to universal principles that they declared ought to be at the foundation of government everywhere."

Jefferson, in his Inaugural Address of 1801, describef the United States government as "the world's best hope." Lincoln, not a man of evangelical temper, spoke of the effort at popular government as "the last, best hope of man."

Along with this sense of hope, says Frankel, there has been in the American air since the time of the Delcaration of Independence the idea that something better is expected of a nation self-created to demonstrate the possibility of a morally principled system of government. Something better is expected of that nation by the world; something better is demanded by that nation's own citizens.

Out of the disillusionment of American idealism after World War I, however, and out of the apparent lessons of World War II, there emerged a new school—the political realists—who called for a foreign policy guided by a hard-headed conception of the national interest.

Among other things, says Frankel, realism maintains that (a) all general principles are suspect in foreign policy; (b) moral principles are the worst kind of general principles, inviting zealotry and fanaticism; (c) there is a direct contradiction between morals and politics, and (d) foreign policy should be based on man as he is and not as we would like him to be.

But moral principles are dangerous only when they are treated as absolutes, argues Frankel. Properly employed, "they are indispensible guidelines to action...they help us to decide what to do about dearly prized values in which our civilization has deep investments and our sense of identity and self-respect is involved...

"For better or worse, a foreign policy will not be effective over the long run if public opinion does not support it; and since public opinion cannot be expected to have an informed judgment on each specific decision taken day-by-day, its assent has to be to the general tendency and direction of the policy-to its guiding principles."

The bankruptcy of America's foreign policy today, under the guidance of the "realists," not to mention the incalculable harm done by leaders who played fast and loose wiith traditional American values—one measure of which is the distrust that currently infects the public opinion Frankel speaks of—suggests that we urgently need to get back to fundamental principles.

As he concludes, we Americans have not always lived up to the values we proclaim. "But when we are indifferent to them, we do violence to ourselves and destroy a principal source of power in the world."

A LIMITED NUCLEAR WAR

WASHINGTON — The good news from the Pentagon this week is that the Air Force has just announced it will start training its crew to fight a "limited nuclear war" in case the United States should want to exercise that option.

While this is an encouraging sign, no one in Washington is quite sure what a limited nuclear war is and unfortunately neither is anyone in Moscow.

"Isn't a limited nuclear war like being a little bit pregnant?" I asked a source high in government circles.

"Certainly not. At the moment small nuclear wars have been considered unthinkable. But we hope that attitude will change, and countries will start thinking about them instead of large nuclear wars that could wipe out a continent."

"Everyone is for small nuclear wars," I said, "as opposed to large ones. But how do you persuade the other side that you're not engaging in a large one? How will we know if we're attacked with nuclear weapons that the Soviets or even the French have no intention of destroying the entire country?"

"It won't be easy," the source said. "But if we announce a new nuclear strategy which is more flexible, then the Soviets will adjust their strategy accordingly. For example, suppose the Russians launched an attack on Mobile, Ala.; we would retaliate by hitting Minsk. If they then hit White Plains, N.Y., we would drop nuclear weapons on Kiev. That would be considered a limited nuclear war. As long as there weren't attacks on our major cities, both sides could live with it."

"I can see that. But how will we know that they are only engaging in a limited nuclear war?"

The source seemed irritated. "That's what the hot line is for, stupid," he said. "The Soviets would alert us as to what cities they intend to bomb and we would alert them about cities we would hit. If they double-cross us and bomb New Orleans instead of Mobile, we'll just lay a little ol' nuclear bomb on Leningrad. Our insurance is that they don't want their entre country destroyed and neither do we."

"I guess we could all live without Mobile and White Plains," I said. "But by chinging our strategy from the deterrent of mutual destruction to limited nuclear war, aren't we encouraging both sides to start seriously thinking about using 'A' weapons?"

"Yes and no. The important thing is that we must have more options. Right now the only option we have is to use our weapons for all-out destruction. The Soviets are also stuck with the same options. But, let's face it, if we could use our atomic weapons just to knock out a few Soviet factory towns in the Ukraine, the Russians would only be under an obligation to destroy some place like Detroit."

"Nobody would miss Detroit," I said. "But suppose we had some Hawks in Congress who got mad and said, 'No one can win a limited nuclear war. We have to go all out or nothing'?"

"You'll get some of that. But no President is going to get us involved in an all-out nuclear war. It would wreck the economy and play havoc with inflation. So no matter how much pressure the Hawks put on, the President will see that an 'A' war doesn't get out of hand."

"Now I know you're going to get mad at me for asking this question," I said. "But suppose one side or the other decides it is losing the limited nuclear war and, rather than face disgrace, turns it into mass destruction? What happens to your strategy then?"

"It will never happen."

"How do you know?"

"Because our military people aren't crazy."

"How do you know?"

"Because anyone who comes up with a limited nuclear war plan has to be sane."

"How do you know?"

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA Crimes: Whom to punish?

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department now faces the ticklish task of determining who should be prosecuted for the crimes that the Central Intelligence Agency committed.

Under CIA auspices, murders were plotted, offices were burglarized, letters were opened, telephones were tapped, defectors were abused and unsuspecting victims were dosed with LSD.

Our sources swear that the Justice Department will prosecute the federal violations and will turn over to the states evidence of local violations.

But the dilemma that already is dividing the Justice Department is whether to go after the top leaders who ordered the illegal acts or the agents who carried them out.

Government agents seldom have been prosecuted for criminal conduct if they were acting under orders. Yet there is even a stronger tendency on the part of the big brass to protect one another.

After the My Lai massacre, the generals in charge of the operation were never indicted. And the Watergate burglars, together with their ringleaders G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, spent more time in the slammer than did their superiors who got early paroles.

Our Justice Department sources say many legal questions must be resolved before it is decided which cases will be pushed. But the prosecutors will do their best, our sources say, to prove that top CIA officials were fully aware they were operating outside the law and, therefore, should be brought before the bar of justice.

DANGEROUS DRINKING WATER: The Environmental Protection Agency's new drinking water standards, it is alleged, do nothing to filter cancer-causing substances from the nation's tap water.

The Environmental Defense Fund charges in an unpublished report that the latest government standards are a "travesty." They are so low, claims the report, that 92.1 per cent of the country's communities already meet them. Indeed, the standards are no better than the 1962 Public Health recommendations for water purity, the report states.

At the eleventh hour, EPA allegedly increased the "safe" levels for fluoridation by 100 per cent. It also encouraged use of chlorine to disinfect the water supplies instead of advocating safer filtration methods, the report charges.

An EPA spokesman told us that the cancer-causing traces, cited by the Environmental Defense Fund, are only "suspects" and not proven killers in the drinking water. The spokesman denied that EPA's water standards threaten publi health.

CAPITOL CRIME: Two months ago, we reported the mysterious disappearance of 14 rare aluminum pennies from congressional custody. They were pilfered, apparently, by light-fingered legislators who may be able to sell them some day for up to $1.4 million.

The missing coins were prototypes for a possible new issue of aluminum pennies, which the U.S. Mint considered minting during the 1973 copper shortage.

Mint Director Mary Brooks passed out 16 prototypes to the Senate and House Banking committees, so the members could see what the proposed pennies would look like. Only two of the samples were returned.

It appears as if a serious crime has been committed by some distinguished thieves on Capitol Hill. This puts poor Mrs. Brooks in a delicate spot. If she asks the Secret Service to investigate the congressional caper, she will antagonize the powerful banking committees that oversee her operations.

So she maintains the myth that the pennies are still in the custody of the two committees and, therefore, aren't officially missing. This makes it unnecessary for her to call in the Secret Service, which isn't about to investigate high congressional muck-a-mucks without an official request.

A spokesman for the Mint insisted, meanwhile, that if the pilfered pennies show up in anyone's rare coin collections, they will be seized forthwith, and both the buyer and seller will be dumped in the pokey.

We polled top experts from coast to coast who agreed, with one exception, that they would be afraid to touch the pennies now. The single exception said he would be willing to buy the coins on the black market for $10,000 apiece.

All the experts agreed that the value will soar as the years pass. They pointed out that a 1913 Liberty-head nickel, which also was never put into circulation, recently sold for $100,000. Only five are known to be in existence.

If the coins should ever become a vailable for sale, the experts believe they will bring a high as $100,000 each. The lowest estimate was $5,000 each if all 14 coins went on the market at the same time. The average evaluation was $35,000.

The Mint's own confidential estimate was that the pennies, if they should ever become legally saleable, would be worth at least $25,000 apiece.

This may explain why the sticky-fingered solons, despite discreet requests on Capitol Hill for the return of the rare coins, are hanging on to them.

Where's Covert CIA? Soviet-controlled underground 'Workers Commissions' ready Spanish Coup with KGB aid

WASHINGTON — It is almost irresistibly tempting to report on Bobby Kennedy's control and direction of the CIA. He took over after his incompatibility with its veteran counter-espionage-steeped director Allen Dulles forced the older, world-famed man to resign. That was in November 1961. Those were the days when Bobby's mentor was the pliable Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the brand new "Military Representative of the President."

But far more vital now is to prevent CIA from being immobilized by two leaking (already gushing) congressional committees. CIA's covert action is the force to salvage , not its computers. Otherwise the U.S. may lose a continent as an ally.

Just keep your eyes on Spain, for example. The KGB always outnumbered us there some 50 to one. Now with the CIA paralyzed, it's crunching our vital operations thre.

In many areas the Soviet State Security Committee (KGB) controls the underground Spanish "Workers Commissions." I know. I've been there. I've spoken comparatively recently with anti-Communist members of some of these commissions. These units are in the fists of trained Spanish Communists, in turn controlled bythe counterpart of Portugal's Alvaro Cunhal. It is they who run the underground "Democratic Junta."

It should be recalled that a little over a year ago, right after the Portuguese revolution, there suddenly appeared at the Lisbon airport this man Cunhal. He had been in Moscow, Prague and Paris. And when he arrived, he was hailed as the general secretary of the Portuguese Communist party. And just as suddenly as he landed, there also materialized some 5,000 cheering young soldiers. They hoisted Cunhal atop an armored car in true Leninist fashion.

Soon Cunhal had organized the Intersindical, the Stalinist-type labor federation which today controls Portuguese industry, commerce, virtually all the press, communication and transport.

Cunhal had his own cadres in the Armed Forces Movement. He linked them with the Intersindical. Now our intelligence forces believes he dominates not only the civilian sector but the military as well.

When the U.S. could have operated covertly in traditional style through CIA to counter the millions of dollars and huge shipments of arms the Soviets were pouring (and still are) into Portugal, the CIA was immobilized by the series of investigations at home -- investigations of history, not of toay's crises. Covert action is out. Overt destruction of CIA is in.

Now we find the rest of the Iberian peninsula seething with "workers action." This report is not on military geo-politics. I'm writing of the KGB's use of the Spanish underground labor network -- the secret counterpart in Spain of Cunhal's interlinked Intersindical.

When the ailing, partially crippled 82-year-old General Franco dies or collapses the Communist controlled Workers Commissions will strike in all senses of the word at the government.

The commissions are powerful. I've covered them in Spain. They've struck southern construction projects and, acting as "agents provocateurs" they incited a riot, the police shot back and four or five workers were killed. Then came an uproar among all workers.

Last November the Workers Commissions proved how strong they were -- and are. They crippled Spain's biggest auto plant, the Seat complex in Barcelona. There had been labor contract renewal negotiations between Seat and the Spanish labor federation, which is considerably freer to argue and strike than are the so-called unions in Russia and the eastern bloc, with the exception of Poland. Suddenly the Workers Commissions demanded they be the sole representative of all until the plant was shut early last January.

There have been strikes involving tens of thousands of workers in the Pamplona industrial belt. Some have been tolerated. Some have not. Some labor officials, some Workers Commissions leaders have been jailed.

But there is no doubt of the power of the underground Communist-controlled Workers Commissions to shut down huge factories, shipyards, electrical plants and transportation. They have even rehearsed a general strike.

This they can do because they have central direction and funding from many outside sources. But the Communist infrastructure inside the Workers Commissions of course is operated by Moscow-trained Communist Spaniards, some veterans of the civil war of the '30s.

And what has the U.S. been doing? We gave Spain some $3 million during fiscal 1975 for agriculture, education and technology. This is for scholarships and cultural exchange and is administered through the National Science Foundation as well as the State Department. CIA hasn't been able to do much to help our anti-Communist friends in the commissions. Further, in view of the two Congressional probes, our friends now desert us. Who can trust a CIA station chief or operatives now? Without "safe" covert operations there is no intelligence work. Without this we might as well get used to watching Soviet murder squads kill the anti-Communist opposition in our allied nations. Just watch.

THE B-1 BOMBER
(Part II)

There has been considerable to-do as well as misunderstanding over the projected costs of the B-1 bomber, which is scheduled to roll off the assembly line early in the 1980s. Current plans call for production of 240 of the versatile bombers to replace our aging fleet of B-52s.

The most important value factor, however, too often is overlooked. This was emphasized in a recent Washington press conference by Major General H. M. Darmstandler, coordinator of Air Force activities related to the B-1.

"The cost of a weapon is not the essential thing," said General Darmstandler. "The key thing is the value of that weapon in maintaining deterrence. How much are the American people willing to pay to keep a nuclear attack unthinkable?"

We could not agree m ore with General Darmstandler. At the same time, however, dollar cost is understandable a consideration in these tough economic times. But even on that score, we believe the B-1 deserves high marks.

REALISM VS. MORALS IN FOREIGN POLICY

What place should moral principles have in the conduct of a nation's foreign policy?

At a time when Americans are concerned about the future direction of their country in the light of the bitter Vietnam experience, at a time when the "dirty tricks" of the Central Intelligence Agency-which some critics allege extended to the attempted or contemplated assassination of certain foreign heads of state—are the subject of official investigation, the question is far from a rhetorical one.

All governments claim to act from moral principles, of course, but the question has a special relevance for Americans, according to Charles Frankel, professor of philosophy and public affairs at Columbia University.

This is because, he writes in "Morality and U.S. Foreign Policy," a booklet recently published by the private, non-partisan educational Foreign Policy Assn., unlike most other nations "made by God or history," the United States "declared itself a nation by an act of explicit political self-construction, by a deliberate compact into which people entered by announcing their allegiance to universal principles that they declared ought to be at the foundation of government everywhere."

Jefferson, in his Inaugural Address of 1801, describef the United States government as "the world's best hope." Lincoln, not a man of evangelical temper, spoke of the effort at popular government as "the last, best hope of man."

Along with this sense of hope, says Frankel, there has been in the American air since the time of the Delcaration of Independence the idea that something better is expected of a nation self-created to demonstrate the possibility of a morally principled system of government. Something better is expected of that nation by the world; something better is demanded by that nation's own citizens.

Out of the disillusionment of American idealism after World War I, however, and out of the apparent lessons of World War II, there emerged a new school—the political realists—who called for a foreign policy guided by a hard-headed conception of the national interest.

Among other things, says Frankel, realism maintains that (a) all general principles are suspect in foreign policy; (b) moral principles are the worst kind of general principles, inviting zealotry and fanaticism; (c) there is a direct contradiction between morals and politics, and (d) foreign policy should be based on man as he is and not as we would like him to be.

But moral principles are dangerous only when they are treated as absolutes, argues Frankel. Properly employed, "they are indispensible guidelines to action...they help us to decide what to do about dearly prized values in which our civilization has deep investments and our sense of identity and self-respect is involved...

"For better or worse, a foreign policy will not be effective over the long run if public opinion does not support it; and since public opinion cannot be expected to have an informed judgment on each specific decision taken day-by-day, its assent has to be to the general tendency and direction of the policy-to its guiding principles."

The bankruptcy of America's foreign policy today, under the guidance of the "realists," not to mention the incalculable harm done by leaders who played fast and loose wiith traditional American values—one measure of which is the distrust that currently infects the public opinion Frankel speaks of—suggests that we urgently need to get back to fundamental principles.

As he concludes, we Americans have not always lived up to the values we proclaim. "But when we are indifferent to them, we do violence to ourselves and destroy a principal source of power in the world."

A LIMITED NUCLEAR WAR

WASHINGTON — The good news from the Pentagon this week is that the Air Force has just announced it will start training its crew to fight a "limited nuclear war" in case the United States should want to exercise that option.

While this is an encouraging sign, no one in Washington is quite sure what a limited nuclear war is and unfortunately neither is anyone in Moscow.

"Isn't a limited nuclear war like being a little bit pregnant?" I asked a source high in government circles.

"Certainly not. At the moment small nuclear wars have been considered unthinkable. But we hope that attitude will change, and countries will start thinking about them instead of large nuclear wars that could wipe out a continent."

"Everyone is for small nuclear wars," I said, "as opposed to large ones. But how do you persuade the other side that you're not engaging in a large one? How will we know if we're attacked with nuclear weapons that the Soviets or even the French have no intention of destroying the entire country?"

"It won't be easy," the source said. "But if we announce a new nuclear strategy which is more flexible, then the Soviets will adjust their strategy accordingly. For example, suppose the Russians launched an attack on Mobile, Ala.; we would retaliate by hitting Minsk. If they then hit White Plains, N.Y., we would drop nuclear weapons on Kiev. That would be considered a limited nuclear war. As long as there weren't attacks on our major cities, both sides could live with it."

"I can see that. But how will we know that they are only engaging in a limited nuclear war?"

The source seemed irritated. "That's what the hot line is for, stupid," he said. "The Soviets would alert us as to what cities they intend to bomb and we would alert them about cities we would hit. If they double-cross us and bomb New Orleans instead of Mobile, we'll just lay a little ol' nuclear bomb on Leningrad. Our insurance is that they don't want their entre country destroyed and neither do we."

"I guess we could all live without Mobile and White Plains," I said. "But by chinging our strategy from the deterrent of mutual destruction to limited nuclear war, aren't we encouraging both sides to start seriously thinking about using 'A' weapons?"

"Yes and no. The important thing is that we must have more options. Right now the only option we have is to use our weapons for all-out destruction. The Soviets are also stuck with the same options. But, let's face it, if we could use our atomic weapons just to knock out a few Soviet factory towns in the Ukraine, the Russians would only be under an obligation to destroy some place like Detroit."

"Nobody would miss Detroit," I said. "But suppose we had some Hawks in Congress who got mad and said, 'No one can win a limited nuclear war. We have to go all out or nothing'?"

"You'll get some of that. But no President is going to get us involved in an all-out nuclear war. It would wreck the economy and play havoc with inflation. So no matter how much pressure the Hawks put on, the President will see that an 'A' war doesn't get out of hand."

"Now I know you're going to get mad at me for asking this question," I said. "But suppose one side or the other decides it is losing the limited nuclear war and, rather than face disgrace, turns it into mass destruction? What happens to your strategy then?"

"It will never happen."

"How do you know?"

"Because our military people aren't crazy."

"How do you know?"

"Because anyone who comes up with a limited nuclear war plan has to be sane."

"How do you know?"

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA Crimes: Whom to punish?

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department now faces the ticklish task of determining who should be prosecuted for the crimes that the Central Intelligence Agency committed.

Under CIA auspices, murders were plotted, offices were burglarized, letters were opened, telephones were tapped, defectors were abused and unsuspecting victims were dosed with LSD.

Our sources swear that the Justice Department will prosecute the federal violations and will turn over to the states evidence of local violations.

But the dilemma that already is dividing the Justice Department is whether to go after the top leaders who ordered the illegal acts or the agents who carried them out.

Government agents seldom have been prosecuted for criminal conduct if they were acting under orders. Yet there is even a stronger tendency on the part of the big brass to protect one another.

After the My Lai massacre, the generals in charge of the operation were never indicted. And the Watergate burglars, together with their ringleaders G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, spent more time in the slammer than did their superiors who got early paroles.

Our Justice Department sources say many legal questions must be resolved before it is decided which cases will be pushed. But the prosecutors will do their best, our sources say, to prove that top CIA officials were fully aware they were operating outside the law and, therefore, should be brought before the bar of justice.

DANGEROUS DRINKING WATER: The Environmental Protection Agency's new drinking water standards, it is alleged, do nothing to filter cancer-causing substances from the nation's tap water.

The Environmental Defense Fund charges in an unpublished report that the latest government standards are a "travesty." They are so low, claims the report, that 92.1 per cent of the country's communities already meet them. Indeed, the standards are no better than the 1962 Public Health recommendations for water purity, the report states.

At the eleventh hour, EPA allegedly increased the "safe" levels for fluoridation by 100 per cent. It also encouraged use of chlorine to disinfect the water supplies instead of advocating safer filtration methods, the report charges.

An EPA spokesman told us that the cancer-causing traces, cited by the Environmental Defense Fund, are only "suspects" and not proven killers in the drinking water. The spokesman denied that EPA's water standards threaten publi health.

CAPITOL CRIME: Two months ago, we reported the mysterious disappearance of 14 rare aluminum pennies from congressional custody. They were pilfered, apparently, by light-fingered legislators who may be able to sell them some day for up to $1.4 million.

The missing coins were prototypes for a possible new issue of aluminum pennies, which the U.S. Mint considered minting during the 1973 copper shortage.

Mint Director Mary Brooks passed out 16 prototypes to the Senate and House Banking committees, so the members could see what the proposed pennies would look like. Only two of the samples were returned.

It appears as if a serious crime has been committed by some distinguished thieves on Capitol Hill. This puts poor Mrs. Brooks in a delicate spot. If she asks the Secret Service to investigate the congressional caper, she will antagonize the powerful banking committees that oversee her operations.

So she maintains the myth that the pennies are still in the custody of the two committees and, therefore, aren't officially missing. This makes it unnecessary for her to call in the Secret Service, which isn't about to investigate high congressional muck-a-mucks without an official request.

A spokesman for the Mint insisted, meanwhile, that if the pilfered pennies show up in anyone's rare coin collections, they will be seized forthwith, and both the buyer and seller will be dumped in the pokey.

We polled top experts from coast to coast who agreed, with one exception, that they would be afraid to touch the pennies now. The single exception said he would be willing to buy the coins on the black market for $10,000 apiece.

All the experts agreed that the value will soar as the years pass. They pointed out that a 1913 Liberty-head nickel, which also was never put into circulation, recently sold for $100,000. Only five are known to be in existence.

If the coins should ever become a vailable for sale, the experts believe they will bring a high as $100,000 each. The lowest estimate was $5,000 each if all 14 coins went on the market at the same time. The average evaluation was $35,000.

The Mint's own confidential estimate was that the pennies, if they should ever become legally saleable, would be worth at least $25,000 apiece.

This may explain why the sticky-fingered solons, despite discreet requests on Capitol Hill for the return of the rare coins, are hanging on to them.

Where's Covert CIA? Soviet-controlled underground 'Workers Commissions' ready Spanish Coup with KGB aid

WASHINGTON — It is almost irresistibly tempting to report on Bobby Kennedy's control and direction of the CIA. He took over after his incompatibility with its veteran counter-espionage-steeped director Allen Dulles forced the older, world-famed man to resign. That was in November 1961. Those were the days when Bobby's mentor was the pliable Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the brand new "Military Representative of the President."

But far more vital now is to prevent CIA from being immobilized by two leaking (already gushing) congressional committees. CIA's covert action is the force to salvage , not its computers. Otherwise the U.S. may lose a continent as an ally.

Just keep your eyes on Spain, for example. The KGB always outnumbered us there some 50 to one. Now with the CIA paralyzed, it's crunching our vital operations thre.

In many areas the Soviet State Security Committee (KGB) controls the underground Spanish "Workers Commissions." I know. I've been there. I've spoken comparatively recently with anti-Communist members of some of these commissions. These units are in the fists of trained Spanish Communists, in turn controlled bythe counterpart of Portugal's Alvaro Cunhal. It is they who run the underground "Democratic Junta."

It should be recalled that a little over a year ago, right after the Portuguese revolution, there suddenly appeared at the Lisbon airport this man Cunhal. He had been in Moscow, Prague and Paris. And when he arrived, he was hailed as the general secretary of the Portuguese Communist party. And just as suddenly as he landed, there also materialized some 5,000 cheering young soldiers. They hoisted Cunhal atop an armored car in true Leninist fashion.

Soon Cunhal had organized the Intersindical, the Stalinist-type labor federation which today controls Portuguese industry, commerce, virtually all the press, communication and transport.

Cunhal had his own cadres in the Armed Forces Movement. He linked them with the Intersindical. Now our intelligence forces believes he dominates not only the civilian sector but the military as well.

When the U.S. could have operated covertly in traditional style through CIA to counter the millions of dollars and huge shipments of arms the Soviets were pouring (and still are) into Portugal, the CIA was immobilized by the series of investigations at home -- investigations of history, not of toay's crises. Covert action is out. Overt destruction of CIA is in.

Now we find the rest of the Iberian peninsula seething with "workers action." This report is not on military geo-politics. I'm writing of the KGB's use of the Spanish underground labor network -- the secret counterpart in Spain of Cunhal's interlinked Intersindical.

When the ailing, partially crippled 82-year-old General Franco dies or collapses the Communist controlled Workers Commissions will strike in all senses of the word at the government.

The commissions are powerful. I've covered them in Spain. They've struck southern construction projects and, acting as "agents provocateurs" they incited a riot, the police shot back and four or five workers were killed. Then came an uproar among all workers.

Last November the Workers Commissions proved how strong they were -- and are. They crippled Spain's biggest auto plant, the Seat complex in Barcelona. There had been labor contract renewal negotiations between Seat and the Spanish labor federation, which is considerably freer to argue and strike than are the so-called unions in Russia and the eastern bloc, with the exception of Poland.Suddenly the Workers Commissions demanded they be the sole representative of all until the plant was shut early last January.

There have been strikes involving tens of thousands of workers in the Pamplona industrial belt. Some have been tolerated. Some have not. Some labor officials, some Workers Commissions leaders have been jailed.

But there is no doubt of the power of the underground Communist-controlled Workers Commissions to shut down huge factories, shipyards, electrical plants and transportation. They have even rehearsed a general strike.

This they can do because they have central direction and funding from many outside sources. But the Communist infrastructure inside the Workers Commissions of course is operated by Moscow-trained Communist Spaniards, some veterans of the civil war of the '30s.

And what has the U.S. been doing? We gave Spain some $3 million during fiscal 1975 for agriculture, education and technology. This is for scholarships and cultural exchange and is administered through the National Science Foundation as well as the State Department. CIA hasn't been able to do much to help our anti-Communist friends in the commissions. Further, in view of the two Congressional probes, our friends now desert us. Who can trust a CIA station chief or operatives now? Without "safe" covert operations there is no intelligence work. Without this we might as well get used to watching Soviet murder squads kill the anti-Communist opposition in our allied nations. Just watch.

Chairman named

ST. LOUIS — Mrs. Colleen Miller of Sikeston has been named Sikeston community chairman of The Arthritis Foundation for this year's campaign.

The announcement was made here by Bernard A. Ross, president of the Eastern Missouri Chapter of the national voluntary health agency.

The fund-raising campaign to be conducted during September will feature the annual door-to-door Victory March for Arthritis, as well as the special events to be announced.

More than 3,000 people in Scott County are afflicted by arthritis, America's No. 1 crippler, according to Ross. The Eastern Missouri Chapter attempts to deal with the disease, which is more than just aches and pains, by providing a broad program in public and professional education, patient care in six Seastern Missouri clinics and research in the medical institutions in the chapter area.

The expression "hair of the dog" goes back to Roman times when it was believed the best antidote for a dog bite was the burned hair of the dog that had attacked you.

Editorials lash lawmakers

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri lawmakers have received a tongue lashing on editorial pages of the state's major newspapers for their performance in the session which ended midnight Sunday.

"The Do-Little 78th" is how the St. Louis Globe-Democrat described the session. The paper said a few accomplishemnts were made, "but in the balance, there's far more on the debit side of the ledger than there is to the legislators' credit."

The newspaper noted that "they didn't, however, neglect to give themselves a hefty pay increase—Which Gov. (Christopher S.) Bond sensibly vetoed—and fatten up their own pension plan."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said if the legislature were to be judged on its legislative batting average, "it would be sent back to the minor leagues."

On the positive side, the Post-Dispatch said "it did to its credit, finally approve a new law for the regulation of lobbying, which has to be tested in operation, yet it was unable to clarify and reinforce the new campaign spending law initiated by the voters."

The Kansas City Times also said some good was done, but the "accomplishments of 1975 were also trivial in comparison to the energies consumed by bids for power, soaring political ambitions and personality clashes."

Committee gives prison report

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Increased employe pay, tighter inmate discipline, continued work release and strictly-controlled furlough programs and elimination of former inmates serving as guards have been called for by a joint legislative committee after review of the state corrections system.

The 12-member panel also discussed some of the other problems facing the Missouri prison system in its 31-page report while two of its black members disputed some of the recommendations.

"The practice of employing ex-inmates must stop," the report of the Joint Committee on Correctional Institutions and Problems said, claiming former inmates used as guards cannot adequately respond in crisis situations because they are banned by law from using guns.

"Even the most trustworthy ex-inmate guard cannot fulfill his obligation when prohibited from using a firearm," the report said. It also noted that ex-inmates used as guards dealing with other inmates are put under undue pressure.

But Corrections Director Edward Haynes said there are no plans to discharge the five former inmate guards and 15 other ex-offenders working at various jobs within the division.

"We're committed to at least 20 (former inmate employes)," he said. "It has worked out well."

The minority view, offered by Democratic Reps. Russell Goward of St. Louis and Orchid Jordan of Kansas City, agreed, contending "it would be a farce ... to expect others to be concerned in helping the majority of offenders by providing employment and (the division) deny the ex-offenders positions within its own works."

While acknowledging that incidents of violence generally pose no significant problem at most of the institutions, the committee called for tighter inmate discipline and standards of personal and institutional cleanliness.

"General cleanliness could be improved with the use of more soap and water combined with inmate labor," the report said. "Every prison facility in Missouri could easily be cleaner at very slight cost to taxpayers."

The minority report disagreed with the full committee's view on discipline, claiming that within the prison system discipline is not given out equally.

"Incarceration is great enough punishment, but when added to a selective few to receive discipline heavily, this causes nothing but more turmoil," Goward and Mrs. Jordan said.

The report recommended an expansion of the work release program "wherever possible" with the only limiting factors being the security of citizens and that jobs are not taken away from others.

The controversial inmate furlough program, which has come under fire from some members of the General Assembly, would be continued, the report said, but only under the specific circumstances outlined in the 1972 law establishing it.

No "borderline" releases of inmates should be tolerated, it said, adding that, "Some evidence was obtained that this program is being abused."

The committee said, "A very serious look at the inmate furlough program is in order and perhaps this program should be tightened up."

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Increased employe pay, tighter inmate discipline, continued work release and strictly-controlled furlough programs and elimination of former inmates serving as guards have been called for by a joint legislative committee after review of the state corrections system.

The 12-member panel also discussed some of the other problems facing the Missouri prison system in its 31-page report while two of its black members disputed some of the recommendations.

"The practice of employing ex-inmates must stop," the report of the Joint Committee on Correctional Institutions and Problems said, claiming former inmates used as guards cannot adequately respond in crisis situations because they are banned by law from using guns.

"Even the most trustworthy ex-inmate guard cannot fulfill his obligation when prohibited from using a firearm," the report said. It also noted that ex-inmates used as guards dealing with other inmates are put under undue pressure.

But Corrections Director Edward Haynes said there are no plans to discharge the five former inmate guards and 15 other ex-offenders working at various jobs within the division.

"We're committed to at least 20 (former inmate employes)," he said. "It has worked out well."

The minority view, offered by Democratic Reps. Russell Goward of St. Louis and Orchid Jordan of Kansas City, agreed, contending "it would be a farce ... to expect others to be concerned in helping the majority of offenders by providing employment and (the division) deny the ex-offenders positions within its own works."

While acknowledging that incidents of violence generally pose no significant problem at most of the institutions, the committee called for tighter inmate discipline and standards of personal and institutional cleanliness.

"General cleanliness could be improved with the use of more soap and water combined with inmate labor," the report said. "Every prison facility in Missouri could easily be cleaner at very slight cost to taxpayers."

The minority report disagreed with the full committee's view on discipline, claiming that within the prison system discipline is not given out equally.

"Incarceration is great enough punishment, but when added to a selective few to receive discipline heavily, this causes nothing but more turmoil," Goward and Mrs. Jordan said.

The report recommended an expansion of the work release program "wherever possible" with the only limiting factors being the security of citizens and that jobs are not taken away from others.

The controversial inmate furlough program, which has come under fire from some members of the General Assembly, would be continued, the report said, but only under the specific circumstances outlined in the 1972 law establishing it.

No "borderline" releases of inmates should be tolerated, it said, adding that, "Some evidence was obtained that this program is being abused."

The committee said, "A very serious look at the inmate furlough program is in order and perhaps this program should be tightened up."

Equipment recovered

FREDERICKTOWN — Radio equipment reported stolen sometime Tuesday night from radio station KFTW was recovered by the St. Francis County Sheriff's Department, Madison County Sheriff's Department, Madison County Sheriff's Department and Flat River Police Department early today, according to the state highway patrol.

The burglary at the station was the third in the last four months. Equipment valued at $20,000 taken in the latest burglary included turntables, cartridge machines, remote equipment, headsets and microphones. The loss had forced the station to cease broadcasting Wednesday.

O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills has averaged 30 yards per carry on returning 33 kickoffs during his six pro football campaigns.

Group to act

CAPE GIRARDEAU—The Cape Girardeau Bicentennial Committee Saturday in Capaha Park will stage the reenactment of the battle of Bunker Hill.

The effort is being spearheaded by the Beaver Bend Swamp Rangers, a local muzzleloading group, and the National Guard.

The afternoon's activities will begin at noon with arts and crafts demonstrations by local artisans. Included will be a display of muzzleloading weapons and an opportunity to fire a dummy charge for a small fee. Individuals will be on hand to explain the various aspects of the antique weapons and their historical significance.

Tomahawk throwing will be demonstrated, and anyone wishing to try their luck may do so free of charge. Fire starting will also be shown using only the flint and hardened steel with tender and candle making using the dipping technique of the colonial period will be shown and blacksmiths will demonstrate the use of the forge and anvil using the same tools and methods of the 18th century. Arrowhead making as done by the Indians hundreds of years ago will be shown and a weaving loom will be on display and demonstrated. Pottery making and wood carving will also be presented by crafts people who have volunteered their services.

At 1 p.m., costumed Indian dancers from Jackson and Dexter will perform. The "Many Smokes" Indian dancers will step through primitive dances of yesteryear. The group is composed of members of Boy Scout troup No. 71 from Dexter. The Explorer Post No. 211 from Jackson, Mo. will demonstrate Oklahoma State Feather Dancing.

The battle is scheduled to begin at approximately 2 p.m. It will feature British cannon fire at the colonial embankment, which will be located on Cherry Hill. The British will boat across Capaha Lagoon and mount three offenses on the colonial positions. Depicted will be two charges on the hill which will be repelled amidst heavy British losses. The third charge will capture the hill for the British giving them a tactical victory, but leaving the colonial forces a moral victory of having successfully stood against the very best of Britains' forces, retreat coming only when ammunition ran low. The battle is expected to last approximately one hour.

At 4:00 p.m. the Indian dancers are scheduled to repeat their earlier performance.

The Cape Girardeau Municipal Band will present a concert at 5 p.m. and the battle will be restaged at approximately 6 p.m.

The Cape Girardeau Jaycees will sell barbeque sandwiches and concessions throughout the afternoon.

The Beaver Bend Swamp Rangers will give away a reproduction of the Revolutionary war musket, the Brown Bess. A lucky member of the Cape Bicentennial Militia will receive the weapon following the last reenactment of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

New hospital facility to be constructed

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A 92-bed continuous care facility to be located at the new St. Francis hospital site on Gordonville Road was given the green light at the executive committee of the board of trustees meeting June 12.

Cost of the project is expected to be about $1,300.000 and is an addition to the original medical center plans. The function of this new faccility will be to provide for three levels of nursing care other than the traditional acute care now provided. Sub-acute or lesser care will result in lower costs to the patient.

M. Virgilia, administrator, commented that, "St. Francis endeavors to provide the most desirable level of care for its patients. The continuous care facility will have skilled nursing care closest to regular hospital care; intermediate care a lesser degree than above and domicilliary a minimum of care where patients can function on their own but need general medical supervision".

Attached to the northeast corner of the new medical center the facility will include isolation rooms, dining rooms, examination room, barber and beauty shops and classrooms for inservice training.

The project was under study for several months according to Mark Scully, chairman of the building committee. He indicated that it would be 240 feet long by53 feet wide and include a ground floor and two upper levels. Parking will be available adjacent to the building and landscaped lawns will make a pleasant area for patients and their families to enjoy their visits.

Tentative plans are to call for bids in early August with work to begin bymid-September. It is planned that this unit will also be ready when the new facility opens in June 1976.

"We accept this expanded role as a true community Medical Center that provides innovative approaches to the delivery of health care. We want the people of the community to know that we will continue to maintain the same high level of tender comprehensive patient care that has been the trade mark of this institution for a century", concluded the administrator.

RIVERDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Musicalive, an organization founded last fall after two American Harpsichord Festivals in Princeton, N.J., will present a third Harpsichord Festival, June 12-22, at the College of Mount Saint Vincent-on-Hudson here.

There will also be a benefit concert in New York's Carnegie Hall June 15. A major goal of the organization is to record and film selected live performances to be preserved in an American Cultural Heritage Library.

Essex sewage problems may be near solution

ESSEX — For years, citizens of Essex have put up with smelly ditches, backed up toilets, open sewage, etc. But after three years of discussion, planning, legal work and red tape, the end is finally in sight.

Essex's problems stem from the lack of a public sewage system in that community. According to Wayne McSpadden, anengineerwith Sam Smith and Company firm at Poplar Bluff, the city can start accepting bids in August or September.

The sewer project has been a controversial subject in Essex. Attempts have been made in the past, but the plans never got much farther than the talking stage. For various reasons such as lack of money, a changeover in city administration and an inability to get through the tremendous amount of paperwork involved — the sewer project has always fallen through until now.

Essex's latest attempt to rid itself of the problems of improper sewage disposal began about four years ago. The city approved bonds which brought Essex to its bonding limit -- $188,000.

An engineering survey was made to study details of the proposed project. The results of the survey brought out the need of a sewer system in Essex as well as the proposed cost of the layout.

A preliminary report was made in 1973, citing these needs and costs. After the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) studied this report, and after a little armtwisting (EPA officials were shown raw sewage floating on the top of the ground in Essex), the city was put on its priority lists for funds in 1974.

An engineer's report made in 1974 put the estimated cost of the project at $283,000.

But with a few minor changes in design and with the cost of labor and materials skyrocketing, the price has gone up.

McSpadden's latest estimate has put the price of the project at a whopping $498,430.

"The treatment plant had to be redesigned to meet new EPA standards," explained McSpadden. "And of course, everything else has gone up, too. That's why we would like to get this thing approved before the price tag goes up again."

The EPA and the Missouri Clean Water Commission had already approved the original $283,000, but now must also okay the additional $210,000 tacked on by inflation.

That is the present holdup.

Presently, the processing of getting the extra funds approved is a matter of red tape. McSpadden expects the EPA to give Essex the green light to go ahead with the advertising of bids soon.

"With any luck at all, the sewer should be completed within a year -and-a-half of the starting date," McSpadden said. His approximation took into consideration bad weather and labor problems.

Meanwhile, Dexter attorney John William Ringer, who handles the city's legal matters, is pushing to get the money approved. Ringer has been involved in the sewer project since the city hired his services in April of 1974.

"At first, we tried to save the expense of an attorney and handle the work ourselves," commented Alderman Danny Hillis. "But now we see the importance of having one."

With the extra money involved in the construction of the much-needed facility, there must also be another way to pay for it and the city is bonded to the limit.

But McSpadden brought out that the Division of Health can grant up to $600 per connection on city sewer projects such as the one in the works for Essex. He added that there are other sources of funds that the city can turn to if needed.

City officials would like to get the task of advertising for and accepting bids out of the way as soon as possible so that construction can begin by September or October. Contractors prefer to do work such as this in the fall and winter months when the water table is lowest.

If the work is again delayed, it could mean that the citizens of Essex will have m ore headaches for several years to come.

"The problems are worst in the spring," noted Alderman Hillis. "Most people can't flush their toilets after a few days of rain."

Mayor R. G. Langley noted that a few peopler still have outdoor toilets.

Small, open cesspools are not uncommon. The odor of open sewage creates a constant flow of complaints to Mayor Langley and the aldermen.

"Some people think we're not working hard on this thing," Hissis commented. "Right now, I'm doing everything I can to get this thing through. I don't know what to do sometimes, but I do what I can." Other city officials echoed those comments.

But for now, at least, the picture is a bright one. Unless the EPA has deceived the engineer, attorney and city officials, Essex will get the funds for the project this year. A site has already been chosen for the lagoon three-fourths of a mile east of Essex. The City of Essex should have a sewer within two years.

Talent contest is scheduled

Twenty acts have entered the Mid-South Fair preliminary talent contest scheduled at 8 p.m. Friday at Middle School.

The contest, called "Salute to '76", is sponsored by the Scott County 4-H Council in conjunction with their annual share the fun night.

Acts which do not exceed five minutes in length include humorous skits and monologues, instrumental and vocal groups and soloists, and dancers of all ages. Entrants are between six and 20 years old and have come from as far away as St. Genevieve to compete.

Sikeston participants include the 4-H Club youth band; the 4-H Club Square Dancers; Rebecca Steward, piano solo; Cheryl Lane, Deanna Debo and Regina Merrick, dance solos. Two monologues entitled "The Hollywood makeup" and "The Census Taker." have been entered by the Miner 4-H Club.

Other participants from New Hamburg, Kelso, Essex and St. Genevieve will help provide a potpouri of entertainment.

Feet Benefit From Exercise

CHICAGO (AP) — Physical fitness doesn't stop at the ankles. Feet benefit from exercise, too. After all, they carry around a heavy burden and are often cramped in close quarters inside shoes.

Feet can stand regular limbering up to strengthen and firm muscles and stimulate circulation.

Here are some easy-to-do exercises which take little time but will give you a good understanding. They come from Scholl Inc. here.

Standing barefoot, stretch up on toes, hold for a few seconds then lower heels to the floor. This builds firmness from toes to thighs.

Stand on a thick board or book and curl toes out around the edge, holding on with the balls of the feet. Lean forward and feel the pull through the toes and instep.

Sit down and place feet flat on the floor. Keeping soles firmly in place, raise the toes up. Spread toes apart, hold for a few seconds then press them closely together. Repeat several times.

Ann Landers

Bachelors unhappiest men in world

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please settle an argument? It's between three couples -- all married. We were having a discussion the other night about the joys of marriage versus the woes. One man was telling about his bachelor brother -- what a great life he is leading and how he envies the guy. (I felt sorry for the fellow's wife.) I think he convinced a few people that marriage was fine for women but not so good for men.

Is bachelorhood all that terrific? What are the statistics? Perhaps with you medical connections and your friends at the Menninger Clinic you can provide some answers. Does staying single mean never having to say you're sorry?--Unconvinced

Dear Un: According to my medical friends and the experts in the field of mental health, married men fare much better than bachelors.

Bachelors have more physical illnesses and more emotional breakdowns. They drink more and have a shorter life span. They are seven times more likely to commit crimes and 22 time more likely to be in prison or jail. Every happiness poll I have ever read indicates that single men are the unhappiest lot in the world.

Dear Ann: My story is true and my life is just beginning. I only hope that my letter will encourage others to seek help and help themselves -- as I did.

Three years ago I attempted suicide. I was terribly depressed and life had no meaning. I didn't love my husband to whom I had been married for several years. He was cruel and domineering. I was terrified of him because he slapped me and pushed me around.

Today I am divorced and becoming a real person. I have a good job, keep my home beautifully and have learned that I can do almost anything if I put my mind to it.

Counseling has been my backbone. I see a psychiatrist every week and have been in therapy for over a year. Progress comes an inch at a time because we must work very hard to change ourselves.

Counseling need not be expensive. Some counseling is free. United Fund agencies, Recovery, Inc., Catholic Family Services, Community Mental Health Centers and many others are available and eager to help. If you suffer from "nervousness," depression and mental anguish, please call your doctor, pastor, rabbi or priest, school principal, AA, Al-Anon, The Salvation Army, Community Mental Health Center or the United Fund. If they have no answers, ask them to recommend someone. The first step is the hardest. It takes courage.

I wake up each morning and smile in my mirror. Then I look out the window and smile at the world. It's so good to feel well and counseling has made the difference. I have a long way to go but at least I've begun. -- You'll Know Me By My Smile

Dear Smile: Thanks for repeating something I've been saying for years.

No longer can people use the excuse, "I can't afford professional help." It needn't cost $40 an hour. As you pointed out, many agencies, self-help groups and counseling services do a wonderful job for a modest fee or no fee at all.

Regarding counseling for sex problems: I urge all my readers to stay out of the yellow pages. There are thousands of phonies around who prey on desperate people. The best clinics are connected with universities and hospitals. And beware of "group therapy" or the suggestion of surrogate partners for sex problems. Both approaches can be very damaging.

Is alcoholism ruining yur life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

If you are using a regular cake recipe in a six-cup bundt pan that is made of heavy cast aluminum and has a teflon lining, you may have to reduce the usual baking time.

Pirates feast on Birds pitching

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a school of thought that the Pittsburgh Pirates are a first-place team with second-rate pitching.

"That's a lot of bull," Jim Rooker said Wednesday night after his six-hitter helped the Pirates to a 9-3 baseball victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates, who backed Rooker with 17 hits, have batted over .300 as a team in winning 17 of their last 23 games

Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen suggested after beating the Pirates here Tuesday night that Pittsburgh's hitters were "carrying" the club's pitchers.

"I don't think their pitching is that good," McGlothen said.

"How can you say we don't have a good staff when we're leading our division? You can score a lot of runs and still loose 9-8," responded Rooker.

"Look at their club. Who do they have? I think he (McGlothen) should worry more about their pitching than our pitching," Rooker added.

Rooker, 5-3, admitted he has been sub-par this season. He also acknowledged that Ken Brett and Dock Ellis have been hampered by injuries.

"The injuries have hurt us, but it's not like we've been getting our tails knocked off," he said.

"The guys who've been filling in have done a good job, and when we're healthy how can you knock us?"

Meanwhile, nobody is questioning the Pirates' hitting.

They scored four runs in the first inning off loser Ron Reed with the help of a wild pitch, a passed ball, an error and four singles, including a two-run poke by Bill Robinson.

"Hitting is contagious on this club," said Robinson, who also singled home a run in the Pirates' three-run eighth inning.

Ed Kirkpatrick, subbing for Richie Zisk in left, had two singles and two doubles for the Pirates, while Manny Sanguillen and Dave Parker added three hits each.

One of Parker hits was a bloop to left that fell in front of Lou Brock; another was a drive to right that Willie Davis dropped. Both Cardinal outfielders said they lost the balls in the lights.

"How often does that happen?" Brock said with a shrug. "It was just one of those nights."

Beyond their hitting, the Pirates were in typical form when it came to horseplay.

After the game, Robinson dumped a cup of beer down Parker's back, Jerry Reuss complained that somebody had put rocks in his shoes; Mario Mendoza hit Reuss in the chest with a wad of tape; and Bob Robertson loudly called grey-haired Coach Don Osborn an "old goat".

"We lost a doubleheader to the Giants last week, and they next day everybody was laughing and riding one another on the bus.

"The crazy thing is that they're like this when we lose too," said Robinson, a newcomer to Pittsburgh this season.

"Everybody has having to much fun it was almost embarassing, but we went out that night and beat Cincinnati."

"We always horse around," said Rooker, "but it is more fun when you win."

Lynn displays power

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Fred Lynn had a 20-game hitting streak stopped Monday, so the Boston Red Sox rookie center fielder decided to do something about it.

"I came to the ballpark early for extra batting practice," Lynn said after leading Boston to a 15-1 walloping of the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night. "I wasn't satisfied with the way I'd been swinging."

He was satisfied after Wednesday's game.

He smashed three home runs, a triple and a single, driving in 10 runs and missing the American League RBI record by one, a mark set by Tony Lazzeri of the New York Yankees in 1936. The major league record is 12, set by ames Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1924.

Lynn's wasn't the only bat on target Wednesday in the American League. In other games, Baltimore clobbered Cleveland 13-6, Kansas City crushed California 13-0, Texas clubbed Chicago 10-3, Milwaukee edged New York 5-3 and Oakland nipped Minnesota 7-6.

With his 5-for-6 effort, Lynn moved in the league lead in runs with 42 and RBIs with 50. He increased his home run total to 14, only one behind the leaders, is third in batting with a .352 average and tied for fifth in doubles with 13.

Lynn began his carnage with a two-run homer in the first inning off starter Joe Coleman. He also tagged Coleman for a three-run blast in the second, slamming the ball off the right field roof at Tiger Stadium.

In the third he slashed a two-run triple off Bob Reynolds, beat out an infield single in the eighth off Tom Walker, then cncluded the evening with a three-run homer off Walker in the ninth.

Orioles 13, Indians 6

Lee May, Tommy David and Paul Blair combined to bat in 10 runs as Baltimore pounded out 19 hits. May and Ken Singleton homered for the winners while Boog Powell and Buddy Bell had round-trippers for Cleveland.

Royals 13, Angels 0

Cookie Rojas' double scored Tony Solaita with the fourth run of the first inning as Kansas City belted starter Nolan Ryan and three other California hurlers. Ryan, who pitched the fourth no-hitter of his career June 1, was forced from the game in the third inning with a groin injury.

Rangers 10, White Sox 3

A grand slam homer by Roy Smalley in the eighth was the big hit as Texas dumped the Chicago White Sox. Ferguson Jenkins gave up three home runs, all solo shots, as he increased his season record to 8-6.

Brewers 5, Yankees 3

Bill Travers, staked to an early 4-0 lead, scattered six hits and had last-out relief help from Ed Rodriguez as Milwaukee stopped the New York Yankees. Sixto Lezcano homered, his fifth, for the Brewers in the seventh as Milwaukee routed Yankee starter Doc Medich.

A's 7, Twins 6

Two home runs by Joe Rudi — one coming with the bases full in the seventh — gave Oakland enough runs to withstand a late Minnesota surge. Down 4-1, the A's scored six runs on just two hits in the seventh.

Pirates feast on Birds pitching

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There's a school of thought that the Pittsburgh Pirates are a first-place team with second-rate pitching.

"That's a lot of bull," Jim Rooker said Wednesday night after his six-hitter helped the Pirates to a 9-3 baseball victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates, who backed Rooker with 17 hits, have batted over .300 as a team in winning 17 of their last 23 games

Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen suggested after beating the Pirates here Tuesday night that Pittsburgh's hitters were "carrying" the club's pitchers.

"I don't think their pitching is that good," McGlothen said.

"How can you say we don't have a good staff when we're leading our division? You can score a lot of runs and still loose 9-8," responded Rooker.

"Look at their club. Who do they have? I think he (McGlothen) should worry more about their pitching than our pitching," Rooker added.

Rooker, 5-3, admitted he has been sub-par this season. He also acknowledged that Ken Brett and Dock Ellis have been hampered by injuries.

"The injuries have hurt us, but it's not like we've been getting our tails knocked off," he said.

"The guys who've been filling in have done a good job, and when we're healthy how can you knock us?"

Meanwhile, nobody is questioning the Pirates' hitting.

They scored four runs in the first inning off loser Ron Reed with the help of a wild pitch, a passed ball, an error and four singles, including a two-run poke by Bill Robinson.

"Hitting is contagious on this club," said Robinson, who also singled home a run in the Pirates' three-run eighth inning.

Ed Kirkpatrick, subbing for Richie Zisk in left, had two singles and two doubles for the Pirates, while Manny Sanguillen and Dave Parker added three hits each.

One of Parker hits was a bloop to left that fell in front of Lou Brock; another was a drive to right that Willie Davis dropped. Both Cardinal outfielders said they lost the balls in the lights.

"How often does that happen?" Brock said with a shrug. "It was just one of those nights."

Beyond their hitting, the Pirates were in typical form when it came to horseplay.

After the game, Robinson dumped a cup of beer down Parker's back, Jerry Reuss complained that somebody had put rocks in his shoes; Mario Mendoza hit Reuss in the chest with a wad of tape; and Bob Robertson loudly called grey-haired Coach Don Osborn an "old goat".

"We lost a doubleheader to the Giants last week, and they next day everybody was laughing and riding one another on the bus.

"The crazy thing is that they're like this when we lose too," said Robinson, a newcomer to Pittsburgh this season.

"Everybody has having to much fun it was almost embarassing, but we went out that night and beat Cincinnati."

"We always horse around," said Rooker, "but it is more fun when you win."

Lynn displays power

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Fred Lynn had a 20-game hitting streak stopped Monday, so the Boston Red Sox rookie center fielder decided to do something about it.

"I came to the ballpark early for extra batting practice," Lynn said after leading Boston to a 15-1 walloping of the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night. "I wasn't satisfied with the way I'd been swinging."

He was satisfied after Wednesday's game.

HR highlights LL play

The seasons first home run to be hit over the fence was recorded in National league action at the city sports complex Wednesday night. Williams claimed the honor in a 10-1 losing cause to the league leading Kiwanis team. The Jaycees lost their first league encounter when the Lions posted a 4-3 win.

In American league action, Ryan defeated Ziegenhorn 10-8 and Nunnelee blanked Righter 11-0 while in the Musial League Malone & Hyde dumped Rotary 16-6 and the Daily Standard skunked the Flower Basket 12-0.

McDowell mastered a three hitter for the National league leading Kiwanis team in their 10-1 romp of Lewis Furniture. Johnson had two of Lewis' three hits and Williams accounted for the other with his fence clearing clout. Self, Watkins and McDonald had two hits each in leading the winners 10 hit assault.

The Lions rallied from a 3-1 deficit with a three run uprising in the fifth inning to hand the Jaycees their first National league loss. Smith scattered six hits and was backed by the two hit performances of Watkins and Branson. Hurley had two safties for the Jaycees.

Ryan scored five runs in the first inning against Ziegenhorn in its American league battle and then fought off the late game charge of their opponents with a four run fifth inning rally to erase a 8-6 deficit. Lambert led the winners hitting with three hits and Hampton had three safties for Ziegenhorn.

John McClelland hurled a two hitter as Nunnelee shutout Righter in the other American League contest. Howard teamed with McClelland to lead the teams 11 hit assault with three hits each.

Stewart homered to highlight the Musial league battles, connecting in the Daily Standard's 12-0 romp of Flower Basket. Hutton had three hits for the Standard's leading effort.

Branshear mastered a fourth hitter for Malone & Hyde as they took care of Rotary 16-6. He fanned 14 batters in the five inning contest. Childers and Alford had three hits each for the winners.

MONTREAL (AP) — Colombia will replace Cuba in the Intercontinental Cup of Amateur Baseball in Moncton and Montreal Aug 14-31, it was announced Wednesday.

The Cubans originally announced their withdrawal from the championships April 23, saying the schedule of the Intercontinental Cup competition conflicts with the Pan American Games this fall in Mexico City. A spokesman for the Cubans said the team felt the Pan-Am Games "are more important."

LINCOLN DOWN, R.I. (AP) — The current Lincoln Downs meeting, scheduled to end Saturday, was granted an additional two nights of racing Wednesday by the Rhode Island Racing and Athletics Commission.

HR highlights LL play

The seasons first home run to be hit over the fence was recorded in National league action at the city sports complex Wednesday night. Williams claimed the honor in a 10-1 losing cause to the league leading Kiwanis team. The Jaycees lost their first league encounter when the Lions posted a 4-3 win.

In American league action, Ryan defeated Ziegenhorn 10-8 and Nunnelee blanked Righter 11-0 while in the Musial League Malone & Hyde dumped Rotary 16-6 and the Daily Standard skunked the Flower Basket 12-0.

McDowell mastered a three hitter for the National league leading Kiwanis team in their 10-1 romp of Lewis Furniture. Johnson had two of Lewis' three hits and Williams accounted for the other with his fence clearing clout. Self, Watkins and McDonald had two hits each in leading the winners 10 hit assault.

The Lions rallied from a 3-1 deficit with a three run uprising in the fifth inning to hand the Jaycees their first National league loss. Smith scattered six hits and was backed by the two hit performances of Watkins and Branson. Hurley had two safties for the Jaycees.

Ryan scored five runs in the first inning against Ziegenhorn in its American league battle and then fought off the late game charge of their opponents with a four run fifth inning rally to erase a 8-6 deficit. Lambert led the winners hitting with three hits and Hampton had three safties for Ziegenhorn.

John McClelland hurled a two hitter as Nunnelee shutout Righter in the other American League contest. Howard teamed with McClelland to lead the teams 11 hit assault with three hits each.

Stewart homered to highlight the Musial league battles, connecting in the Daily Standard's 12-0 romp of Flower Basket. Hutton had three hits for the Standard's leading effort.

Branshear mastered a fourth hitter for Malone & Hyde as they took care of Rotary 16-6. He fanned 14 batters in the five inning contest. Childers and Alford had three hits each for the winners.

MONTREAL (AP) — The Canadian Football League's annual all-star game scheduled for the Montreal Autostade next Tuesday was canceled Wednesday due to lack of interest.

Only about 2,000 advance tickets were sold for the game pitting a CFL all-star team against the Montreal Alouettes, the 1974 Grey Cup champions.

MEMPHIS (AP) — The 19th annual Danny Thomas Memphis Classic golf tournament will be televised by NBC next year.

Tournament officials announced Wednesday that the Professional Golfers' Association has approved the dates of May 20-23 for the event and that NBC has signed a contract to televise it.

MONTREAL (AP) — Colombia will replace Cuba in the Intercontinental Cup of Amateur Baseball in Moncton and Montreal Aug 14-31, it was announced Wednesday.

The Cubans originally announced their withdrawal from the championships April 23, saying the schedule of the Intercontinental Cup competition conflicts with the Pan American Games this fall in Mexico City. A spokesman for the Cubans said the team felt the Pan-Am Games "are more important."

LINCOLN DOWN, R.I. (AP) — The current Lincoln Downs meeting, scheduled to end Saturday, was granted an additional two nights of racing Wednesday by the Rhode Island Racing and Athletics Commission.

The commission approved the addition programs, planned for next Monday and Tuesday, in view of the delayed opening of nearby Narragansett Park.

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Boxing Committee voted Wednesday to recommend to the Olympic Committee Board of Directors that the 1976 trials be held in Riverfront Coliseum in Cincinnati June 9-12.

Boxing committee chairman Matthew Cusack announced they were also recommending the training camp be held at the University of Vermont, in Burlington beginning June 13.

Five cities bid for the Olympic trials and two locations for the training camp.

The USOC Board of Directors will meet in Colorado Springs, June 27-28 to act on the recommendations.

Wildlife town

TIPTON — Your average opossum is not likely to be judged Best of Show. He is a graduate cum laude of the School of Ugly. If there were an opossum beauty contest, there would be no winner.

But there's at least one of the critters worried enough to do something abut it.

Gordon Williams, Tipton town marshal, recently was called to a local beauty parlor where the staff and customers were in a tizzy.

There was a big opossum loose in the place. Williams, a wildlife enthusiast, herded the waddling animal out of the beauty shop, down the street (trying to ignore the stares and comments of half the town's citizenry who were on their way to work) to the edge of town where he explained that civic welcome did not extend to opossums.

Tipton and Willaims are no strangers to wildlife. He reports there is an owl living in the hotel which has frequent midnight confrontations with an old raccoon that lives under a farmers co-op builidng.

The two scrap and scream in the middle of the main street, then go limping off to their lairs to recuperate.

New registration procedures to be put into effect soon

The law which requires young men to register with the Selective Service System is still in full force and effect. For many years, young men were required to register within a few days of their 18th birthday, but registration procedures were changed on April 1 to require registration during a single annual registration period.

No one will be registered during the remainder of 1975. The first annual registration will be conducted early in 1976. As plans for annual registration are not yet complete, the actual dates will not be announced until late this year.

At that time, a presidential proclamation will announce a new registration procedure. A nationwide publicity campaign will be launched simultaneously, to inform young men born in 1957 of the dates of the annual registration. Local news media will publish information on registration sites.

Remember, the law still requires all 18-year-old men to register with Selective Service System. Only the procedures are being changed.

Those who registered before April 1 will not be required to register again.

Parma girl reported missing

She is described as having long black hair, brown eyes and was wearing blue jeans and a navy blue blouse.

Persons knowing her whereabouts are asked to call Mrs. Morley at 357-4553, the Highway Patrol, or the New-Madrid County Sheriff's Department.

Assignment Bootheel:

Sew a little, save a lot??

By DEBRA EASTWOOD

The crunch is on and homemakers everywhere are starting to feel it. Having just graduated from college and taken my first full-time job, I am now beginning to understand what a problem making ends meet can be, particularly for extravagant people like me.

My first step toward economizing was learning to sew. This might not seem difficult to some people, but for me it was a monumental feat.

To begin with, I am not nimble fingered. I'm the sort of person who is in awe of anyone who can type with more than one finger. Secondly, I have a paranoic fear of machines with sharp attachments--like needles.

Last week I began work on a shorts set. This was not the first time I had ever tried to sew. In high school I took a course in home economics. My last and finest sewing project my mother made me give to the Salvation Army before I'd even worn it once. I bet the people down there really appreciated it!

One of my first discoveries was that dull scissors do not cut heavy double knit cut. I hacked and ripped for two hours before my mother informed me that manicure scissors have no place in the sewing room.

Then came the moment I had dreaded. It was time to use the machine. Trembling, I crept up to it and shakily threaded the needle's eye. I slipped the material under the presser foot and hit the foot pedal on the floor. "Ma! It tried to get my hand!"

Finally, I overcame my fear and started making the first seams. It was remarkably straight and when I got to the end, I hurriedly pulled the material out from underneath the presser foot to show Mom my work of art.

As I jerked the knit up, the stitches began to fall out. My chin nearly dropped to the floor and my eyes clouded with moisture. My beautiful seam was gone forever. My mother just sighed and said, "Next time try using a bobbin."

Determined to do it right and get done in one day, I settled back down to the machine and gritted my teeth. I went so fast I was sure the sewing machine must be smoking and no doubt the needle was nearly worn to a nub. I made the final machine stitch and slipped the jacket on to see how it looked before I started hemming.

My mother rocked with laughter, "Well, you've done it this time!"

I rushed to the mirror to see what catastrophe had befallen me. I was crestfallen. My joy and pride departed. I had blown it again.

Not to be intimidated by scraps of material sown together, I wore it anyway. I received lots of compliments and many quizzical looks. "That's a beautiful shorts outfit, but isn't something wrong?"

"Wrong? Heavens, no! This is a special piece of material. These are trick birds. They're supposed to fly upside down."

CAVE INVITES KATE SMITH

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Since 1939 when Kate Smith recorded "God Bless America," each cave tour at Meramec Caverns here is concluded by the playing of that song in front of an American flag on a multi-million-year-old Stage Curtain, created by Mother Nature. Lester B. Dill, cave owner, says it has been played some 200,000 times.

"I've invited Miss Smith to come to the place where 'God Bless America' has been played more than anywhere in the nation and sing it live. It would be a new high as well as low in her career," says Dill.

Pilots to meet

A meeting of the Southeast Missouri chapter of the Missouri Pilots Association will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at Sikeston Country Club.

MORE SMUGGLED THAN SOLD

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—Diamond smugglers "exported" over $80-million worth of gems from Angola in 1974, surpassing the legal trade for the year, the Ministry of Natural Resources says.

The ministry said the revenue lost from illicit trade was enough to build schools for half a million students in the Portuguese colony which becomes independent later this year.

CAVE INVITES KATE SMITH

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Since 1939 when Kate Smith recorded "God Bless America," each cave tour at Meramec Caverns here is concluded by the playing of that song in front of an American flag on a multi-million-year-old Stage Curtain, created by Mother Nature. Lester B. Dill, cave owner, says it has been played some 200,000 times.

"I've invited Miss Smith to come to the place where 'God Bless America' has been played more than anywhere in the nation and sing it live. It would be a new high as well as low in her career," says Dill.

MORE SMUGGLED THAN SOLD

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—Diamond smugglers "exported" over $80-million worth of gems from Angola in 1974, surpassing the legal trade for the year, the Ministry of Natural Resources says.

The ministry said the revenue lost from illicit trade was enough to build schools for half a million students in the Portuguese colony which becomes independent later this year.

Bike patrol wheels to success

LINDSAY, Calif. (AP) — Pedaling policemen have helped give this small central California farming town one of the lowest crime rates in the area, Chief John Beene says.

Beene calls the bicycle patrols, now five years old, the "ultimate compromise between walking the beat and the automobile."

The bicycle patrolman can cover just about as much territory on his 10-speed as his more conventionally conveyed officers in patrol cars, Beene said.

The crime-busting secret is in the silence of his approach and the view the officer gets from his padded seat, the chief added.

Beene says from one to four bike-mounted officers sally forth each day in this two-square-mile community of 5,000. Most bike patrols cruise residential neighborhoods beginning at 8 a.m., then shift to business sections after dark when people have gone home.

"Statistics show an increasing number of burglaries now occur in the morning when people are at work," Beene said.

"The officers have walkie-talkies, and even if they can't chase cars, it's better to chase them off than not to see them at all."

A Dr. McConnell of St. Louis was in Sikeston this week making arrangements to locate here. He has rented the Ranney home for his family and will move here soon. His office will be over the Kready Drug Store.

The first cotton blossoms of the season were brought to town Wednesday by Henry McCain and W. H. Sikes, who raised it on land owned by L. M. Stallcup. As the first cotton blooms reported last year were on July 11, the season seems to be over two weeks early.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Now the governor's custom was to release one Jewish prisoner each year during the Passover celebration — anyone they wanted. This year there was a particularly notorious criminal in jail named Barabbas, and as the crowds gathered before Pilate's house that morning he asked them, "Which shall I release to you — Barabbas, or Jesus your Messiah?" For he knew very well that the Jewish leaders had arrested Jesus out of envy because of his popularity with the people.

Dear Sir:

It's not many cities that can boast of a Blue Ribbon paper. It's not many cities that can boast of a successful Ecumenical Vacation Church school either. A school where the volunteers from six churches of different denominations are operating the smoothest running organization this town has ever seen. And the differences are more than religious background, for the "generation gap" has disappeared where teenagers work beside grandmothers to bring the Word to these children.

It is a disappointment to learn that a Blue Ribbon paper doesn't find enough interest in this Blue Ribbon endeavor to properly cover it.

Will our children understand this?

Sincerely,
Sarah MacLaughlin

Dear Charley:

I enclose a little press release showing that Hotel Governor has been listed in the 1975 edition of the Mobil Travel Guide, which we consider is quite an accomplishment for an old hotel, as the rules are very strict and the inspector is very thorough.

If you can run this some time in your Business News Section I will sincerely appreciate it.

I am still one of your subscribers and keep up with what is going on around Sikeston and Southeast Missouri and see somebody from that area almost every week.

Kindest personal regards.

Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

We are writing in regard to your editorial of June 6 and Mr. Sikes' letter to the editor of May 31 concerning citizens committee in general and specifically the Sikeston Industrial Committee.

The Committee was appointed by the City Council in 1968 when Mr. Sikes was Mayor to make recommmendations concerning the use of $42,500 for industrial development and industrial development services. The funds were derived from the Anchor Toy Corporation when it exercised its option on the land adjacent to its property. The money represented a repayment of the S.I.D.C. for monies raised by public subscription and donation for the development of industry.

The ordinance appointing the advisory committee states the money shall be "devoted to the development and promotion of industry and to service industries in and for Sikeston".

The money has been kept in a separate fund and only expended by a majority vote of the Committee for Industrial Development and approved by the City Council. The following is a complete listing of the expenditures made from the C.I.D. Fund:

Date, payee, Purpose and amount, respectively--

3-8-68.. Alex Waters & Assoc., Survey of Anchor Toy Land $192.50

3-8-68.. Moore-Harris Abstract, Abstract of Anchor Toy Land, $259.00

3-8-68.. Matthews Copy Shop, Copies of Survey, $2.52

3-7-69.. Airport Improvement Fund , Portion of Airport Terminal Building cost, $12,000.00

1-9-70.. National Lock, Interestr Interim Financing National Lock, $1,155.41

1-9-70.. Dearmont Oliver, Loss of Bean Crop due to construction of National Lock, $1,000.00

1-9-70.. Chamber of Commerce, Sikeston Industrial Brochure, $1,800.00

1-9-70.. L. A. Schurenberg, Cost of 2½ Acres used in construction of Road to Ntiional Lock (Keystone Drive), $2,500.00

1-6-73.. John Cowan Construction, Curbs for Welter Drive to serve Malone and Hyde, $946.01

2-12-73.. W. S. McMullin, Pavement for Welter Drive to serve Malone and Hyde, $2,040.00

9-13-73.. Chamber of Commerce, Industrial promotion expense Telephone, sign, utilities prospect entertainment, $1,221.85

9-13-73.. S.I.D.C., Meeting notices, bill boards, prospect entertainment, $732.63

6-28-74.. Board of Utilities, Portion sewerline cost for Potlatch Forrests, Inc., $588.52

6-28-74.. Chamber of Commerce, Portion of Chamber of Commerce Building cost, $13,500.00

Present Balance in C.I.C. Fund, $1,561.56

Escrow Amount at Security National Bank, $3,000.00.

Total--$42,500.000

The C. I. D. and City Council approved the contribution toward the Chamber of Commerce Building as the Chamber handles the City's industrial prospects and they needed a facility that was easily accessible and provided space for meeting with prospects. Also office space has been provided in the building for a City Industrial Director when the need arises for a director.

The above expenditures are consistent with the purpose of the ordinance and this letter should serve to clarify recent public statements concerning the use of he C.I.D. Funds. Also the Committee wishes to affirm its belief in the effectiveness of a citizens committee to advise on City financial matters.

Committee for Industrial Development

The Committee was appointed by the City Council in 1968 when Mr. Sikes was Mayor to make recommmendations concerning the use of $42,500 for industrial development and industrial development services. The funds were derived from the Anchor Toy Corporation when it exercised its option on the land adjacent to its property. The money represented a repayment of the S.I.D.C. for monies raised by public subscription and donation for the development of industry.

The ordinance appointing the advisory committee states the money shall be "devoted to the development and promotion of industry and to service industries in and for Sikeston".

The money has been kept in a separate fund and only expended by a majority vote of the Committee for Industrial Development and approved by the City Council. The following is a complete listing of the expenditures made from the C.I.D. Fund:

Date, payee, Purpose and amount, respectively--

3-8-68.. Alex Waters & Assoc., Survey of Anchor Toy Land $192.50

3-8-68.. Moore-Harris Abstract, Abstract of Anchor Toy Land, $259.00

3-8-68.. Matthews Copy Shop, Copies of Survey, $2.52

3-7-69.. Airport Improvement Fund , Portion of Airport Terminal Building cost, $12,000.00

1-9-70.. Dearmont Oliver, Loss of Bean Crop due to construction of National Lock, $1,000.00

1-9-70.. Chamber of Commerce, Sikeston Industrial Brochure, $1,800.00

1-9-70.. L. A. Schurenberg, Cost of 2½ Acres used in construction of Road to Ntiional Lock (Keystone Drive), $2,500.00

1-6-73.. John Cowan Construction, Curbs for Welter Drive to serve Malone and Hyde, $946.01

2-12-73.. W. S. McMullin, Pavement for Welter Drive to serve Malone and Hyde, $2,040.00

9-13-73.. S.I.D.C., Meeting notices, bill boards, prospect entertainment, $732.63

6-28-74.. Board of Utilities, Portion sewerline cost for Potlatch Forrests, Inc., $588.52

6-28-74.. Chamber of Commerce, Portion of Chamber of Commerce Building cost, $13,500.00

Present Balance in C.I.C. Fund, $1,561.56

Escrow Amount at Security National Bank, $3,000.00.

Total--$42,500.000

The C. I. D. and City Council approved the contribution toward the Chamber of Commerce Building as the Chamber handles the City's industrial prospects and they needed a facility that was easily accessible and provided space for meeting with prospects. Also office space has been provided in the building for a City Industrial Director when the need arises for a director.

The above expenditures are consistent with the purpose of the ordinance and this letter should serve to clarify recent public statements concerning the use of he C.I.D. Funds. Also the Committee wishes to affirm its belief in the effectiveness of a citizens committee to advise on City financial matters.

Sincerely yours,
Committee for Industrial Development

Dear Sir:

It's not many cities that can boast of a Blue Ribbon paper. It's not many cities that can boast of a successful Ecumenical Vacation Church school either. A school where the volunteers from six churches of different denominations are operating the smoothest running organization this town has ever seen. And the differences are more than religious background, for the "generation gap" has disappeared where teenagers work beside grandmothers to bring the Word to these children.

It is a disappointment to learn that a Blue Ribbon paper doesn't find enough interest in this Blue Ribbon endeavor to properly cover it.

Will our children understand this?

Dear Charley:

I enclose a little press release showing that Hotel Governor has been listed in the 1975 edition of the Mobil Travel Guide, which we consider is quite an accomplishment for an old hotel, as the rules are very strict and the inspector is very thorough.

If you can run this some time in your Business News Section I will sincerely appreciate it.

I am still one of your subscribers and keep up with what is going on around Sikeston and Southeast Missouri and see somebody from that area almost every week.

Kindest personal regards.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

We are writing in regard to your editorial of June 6 and Mr. Sikes' letter to the editor of May 31 concerning citizens committee in general and specifically the Sikeston Industrial Committee.

The Committee was appointed by the City Council in 1968 when Mr. Sikes was Mayor to make recommmendations concerning the use of $42,500 for industrial development and industrial development services. The funds were derived from the Anchor Toy Corporation when it exercised its option on the land adjacent to its property. The money represented a repayment of the S.I.D.C. for monies raised by public subscription and donation for the development of industry.

The ordinance appointing the advisory committee states the money shall be "devoted to the development and promotion of industry and to service industries in and for Sikeston".

The money has been kept in a separate fund and only expended by a majority vote of the Committee for Industrial Development and approved by the City Council. The following is a complete listing of the expenditures made from the C.I.D. Fund:

Date, payee, Purpose and amount, respectively--

3-8-68.. Alex Waters & Assoc., Survey of Anchor Toy Land $192.50

6-28-74.. Board of Utilities, Portion sewerline cost for Potlatch Forrests, Inc., $588.52

6-28-74.. Chamber of Commerce, Portion of Chamber of Commerce Building cost, $13,500.00

Present Balance in C.I.C. Fund, $1,561.56

Escrow Amount at Security National Bank, $3,000.00.

Total--$42,500.000

The C. I. D. and City Council approved the contribution toward the Chamber of Commerce Building as the Chamber handles the City's industrial prospects and they needed a facility that was easily accessible and provided space for meeting with prospects. Also office space has been provided in the building for a City Industrial Director when the need arises for a director.

The above expenditures are consistent with the purpose of the ordinance and this letter should serve to clarify recent public statements concerning the use of he C.I.D. Funds. Also the Committee wishes to affirm its belief in the effectiveness of a citizens committee to advise on City financial matters.

Women of 100 nations attend conference

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of women from 100 nations open a two-week conference today to demand that women get better education, higher-paying jobs and a bigger say in running the world.

The United Nations International Women's Conference is the first U.N. gathering devoted exclusively to women's issues and the focal point of the 1975 International Women's Year.

Men are well represented, however. More than a fifth of the official delegates are men, and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and President Luis Echeverria of Mexico were to address the opening conference session.

Helvi Sipila of Finland, secretary general of the conference, told reporters she hoped the meeting would open an era in which "women start participating not only in their own futures but in those of their countries and the world."

"I hope that at the end of this conference we may see the beginning of a new world," said Mrs. Sipila, who is an assistant U.N. secretary-general, the highest rank held by a woman in the world organization.

The conference will discuss the sharing of responsibilities and activities within the family, inclusion of women in economic development programs and how women can achieve financial independence and political clout.

Sikeston.

After the fire, Elbert said the three split and went their separate ways. Elbert told Patterson that later he and Gillespie stole some bicycles and rode them awhile, ditched the bikes and followed some railroad tracks to a viaduct, and from there to Interstate 55 where they were picked up.

Gillespie at first denied any knowledge of the fire, saying he was asleep in the car.

In a later statement to Hinton, however, he said that the car was having carburetor problems and that it was decided to stop at a g as station for some gas to use in the carburetor. He said he was holding it in the car.

They later stopped the car to take a break. Gillespie told Hinton he then got out of the car, threw away the can of gasoline against a wall. He said he then lit a cigarette, starting the fire accidentally.

In a statement made by Elbert, he said he and Gillespie were talking about robbing a store and setting a fire as a diversionary tactic. He said Gillespie asked for the can of gas and, later after the fire had started, had seen him running from the fire.

The statements Hinton took were not signed by the defendants, which led to lengthy questioning of Hinton by the defense attorneys.

The court decided that a felony had been committed and that there was probable cause that Gillespie had committed the crime, but that the state's case was not strong enough to hold either Simon or Elbert.

work on the steam boilers; plus a large labor gang doing various maintenance, cleanup and repair work.

Besides these crews, there was a complete blacksmith shop with three smiths and three helpers working at three forges and a stationary building with a crew of four men who were responsible for supplying air and steam to the roundhouse.

Those were busy days in railroad history and looking at the remains of the buildings and hearing of the massive activity might tend to make some people unhappy. Not so with Stuffy. He sees it as a sign of progress.

He thinks most people today would not do the hard physical labor his generation accepted as normal working conditions... and this is progress.

The old roundhouse was converted for work on diesel engines and reduced to five stalls about 1950. This was the beginning of the end of the Chaffee railroad era. Slowly work was centralized to Memphis, St. Louis and Springfield. In 1968, the roundhouse was abandoned and torn down during the next few years. But the railroad had given Stuffy and his school teacher wife, Malissa, a living for a lifetime.

Tommy Fulton, 24, of Cape Girardeau, is a three-month employe at the Chaffee station and, when asked how he felt about the future of railroading for himself as a career, he had the same spirit of optimism as Stuffy Rigdon.

Fulton believes railroads are here to stay, maybe with a lot iess men, but with 40 per cent of the nation's freight going by rail, he says, "Yes, I've got a future, if not here, then in some other phase of the industry."

Six trains a day now go through the Chaffee yard, and it is the place where crews board and come back to. Chaffee has seen an era evolve from men huddling around a pot-bellied stove in the roundhouse, when anyone working out of the River Division was called a swamp angel and when passenger trains made regular runs to Puxico, Advance and Poplar Bluff, to a new era of computerized railroading.

Tammy is home after nightmare

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) - Like her mother said, "It's like Christmas, New Year's and Easter all rolled into one," for little Tammy Perrin, 6, back home after a nightmare.

Tammy was released Tuesday night from the University of Kansas Medical Center where she had been a patient since found June 8, wandering dazed near a wooded ravine, beaten, assaulted and slashed.

Police believe her kidnaper left the girl for dead. He has not been found. There are no suspects and very little evidence, police said.

Tammy spent Wednesday getting acquainted with a large stuffed elephant and making mud pies with friends in the front yard of her home, smiling despite a stitched gash that extends from under her left eye to her right cheek.

Waiting for Tammy was her room piled high with dolls, stuffed animals, toys, coloring books, and hundreds of other gifts and cards from well-wishers throughout the country.

"I'm so proud of her," said Tammy's mother, Mrs. Billie Smitson. "Ididn't expect her to be well this quick. She's just as active as she can be."

Mrs. Smitson took Tammy back to the medical center Wednesday for psychiatric counseling, part of the therapy for her recovery from an ordeal doctors hope has no traumatic after effects.

"She isn't showing any serious psychological problems, but the doctors say they don't know if there will be problems in the future," Mrs. Smitson said.

save for your BIG day

That big day when you lay down your tools or close your desk and begin your retirement.

Like to fish? Travel? Enjoy yourself?

Here's How to Turn $125 A Month Into $434.22 A Month

If you deposit $125 a month for 20 years, you may then receive $434.22 a month for the following 20 years. That's just one of the ways your Individual Retirement Account - IRA - can be set up.

Until recently, the only way you could participate in a pension plan was to work for a large company or the government or some other employer who offered one.

Now any individual not covered by a pension plan may set up his or her own IRA with tax relief and other benefits of formal pension plans.

If you don't plan for your retirement, no one else will. Come in and let us tell you more about the Individual Retirement Account.

Federal law and regulations require that money withdrawn before maturity earns regular passbook savings rate less three months interest. Federal law requires that permanent withdrawal of IRA funds be subject to a 10% Federal penalty tax.

work on the steam boilers; plus a large labor gang doing various maintenance, cleanup and repair work.

Besides these crews, there was a complete blacksmith shop with three smiths and three helpers working at three forges and a stationary building with a crew of four men who were responsible for supplying air and steam to the roundhouse.

Those were busy days in railroad history and looking at the remains of the buildings and hearing of the massive activity might tend to make some people unhappy. Not so with Stuffy. He sees it as a sign of progress.

He thinks most people today would not do the hard physical labor his generation accepted as normal working conditions... and this is progress.

The old roundhouse was converted for work on diesel engines and reduced to five stalls about 1950. This was the beginning of the end of the Chaffee railroad era. Slowly work was centralized to Memphis, St. Louis and Springfield. In 1968, the roundhouse was abandoned and torn down during the next few years. But the railroad had given Stuffy and his school teacher wife, Malissa, a living for a lifetime.

Tommy Fulton, 24, of Cape Girardeau, is a three-month employe at the Chaffee station and, when asked how he felt about the future of railroading for himself as a career, he had the same spirit of optimism as Stuffy Rigdon.

Fulton believes railroads are here to stay, maybe with a lot less men, but with 40 per cent of the nation's freight going by rail, he says, "Yes, I've got a future, if not here, then in some other phase of the industry."

Six trains a day now go through the Chaffee yard, and it is the place where crews board and come back to. Chaffee has seen an era evolve from men huddling around a pot-bellied stove in the roundhouse, when anyone working out of the River Division was called a swamp angel and when passenger trains made regular runs to Puxico, Advance and Poplar Bluff, to a new era of computerized railroading.

Tammy is home after nightmare

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) - Like her mother said, "It's like Christmas, New Year's and Easter all rolled into one," for little Tammy Perrin, 6, back home after a nightmare.

Tammy was released Tuesday night from the University of Kansas Medical Center where she had been a patient since found June 8, wandering dazed near a wooded ravine, beaten, assaulted and slashed.

Police believe her kidnaper left the girl for dead. He has not been found. There are no suspects and very little evidence, police said.

Tammy spent Wednesday getting acquainted with a large stuffed elephant and making mud pies with friends in the front yard of her home, smiling despite a stitched gash that extends from under her left eye to her right cheek.

Waiting for Tammy was her room piled high with dolls, stuffed animals, toys, coloring books, and hundreds of other gifts and cards from well-wishers throughout the country.

"I'm so proud of her," said Tammy's mother, Mrs. Billie Smitson. "Ididn't expect her to be well this quick. She's just as active as she can be."

Mrs. Smitson took Tammy back to the medical center Wednesday for psychiatric counseling, part of the therapy for her recovery from an ordeal doctors hope has no traumatic after effects.

"She isn't showing any serious psychological problems, but the doctors say they don't know if there will be problems in the future," Mrs. Smitson said.

Bond signs bills

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two more bills approved during the recently-concluded legislative session were signed into law Wednesday by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

One is a general revision of the state corporation law aimed at modernizing the law and making it compatible with the laws of other states, and the other sets out a procedure for the sale of county hospital property.

A way to save up to $1500 of your taxable income.

It's your choice. You can go ahead and pay income tax on all of your earnings. Or you can create your own Individual Retirement Account (IRA), and pay little, or no current income tax on the amount you save... up to $1500. You see, under the new Pension Reform Act, if you do not participate in a pension plan where you work, you can establish your own individual retirement plan with tax deductible dollars. That could mean up to $15,000 in deductible savings over the next ten years.

This is important and valuable enough to be worth a little of your time... so Kansas City Life, The Lioness, would like to introduce you to one of our people who can help. Our people have an IRA Planning Kit which provides you with an easy way to make your plans. So just give one of our people a call, or drop us a line, and we'll make sure you get a copy.

save for your BIG day

That big day when you lay down your tools or close your desk and begin your retirement.

Like to fish? Travel? Enjoy yourself?

Here's How to Turn $125 A Month Into $434.22 A Month

If you deposit $125 a month for 20 years, you may then receive $434.22 a month for the following 20 years. That's just one of the ways your Individual Retirement Account - IRA - can be set up.

Until recently, the only way you could participate in a pension plan was to work for a large company or the government or some other employer who offered one.

Now any individual not covered by a pension plan may set up his or her own IRA with tax relief and other benefits of formal pension plans.

If you don't plan for your retirement, no one else will. Come in and let us tell you more about the Individual Retirement Account.

Federal law and regulations require that money withdrawn before maturity earns regular passbook savings rate less three months interest. Federal law requires that permanent withdrawal of IRA funds be subject to a 10% Federal penalty tax.

Editor's note

Cooking is an art; and Southeast Missouri can be proud of its many "kitchen artists." The ingenuity of the good cooks in the Bootheel is apparent in the great variety of ways they prepare meat dishes, salads, vegetables and desserts.

In recognition of this variety and to help all area cooks gain new and exciting recipes with which to dazzle their family and friends, The Daily Standard presents its fifth annual cookbook edition.

For five years we have been collecting recipes from the favorite files of area cooks and each year there are brand new ideas. Many of the recipes included here are originals -- others are merely favorites gained from sources long forgotten.

A few of the bounty of good cooks in the Bootheel have been featured in these pages, with a peek into their lives and kitchens.

Thanks to the many good cooks who generously shared their recipes with us through these pages and to the advertisers for once again making the cookbook possible.

Happy Cooking!

Farm wife enjoys cooking

By WANDA ATCHLEY

BLOOMFIELD - In 1776 this country was mostly rural. However, 200 years later, as this country prepares for its bicentennial celebration, the small farms which dotted this country's landscape are gradually disappearing making way for larger, more progressive farms.

In 1776 some of this country's best cooks were the pioneer farm wives. Even though the farms have grown larger and farming methods have changed drastically, American farm wives are still some of the nation's best cooks.

One such farm wife is Connie Silliman who lives with her husband J. W. and daughter Terri on their farm located seven miles southeast of Dexter. Cooking comes naturally for Mrs. Silliman because she was a farmer's daughter before becoming a farmer's wife.

A typical farm wife, Mrs. Silliman sometimes finds it necessary to help out on the farm, usually by driving trucks during the busy harvest season. When not helping her husband on the farm, she sews all her own clothing and has just finished decorating her new four bedroom home constructed earlier this year.

Being a farmer's wife does bring some rewards, and atrip to Hawaii is in store for the Silliman's in February. They won the trip after being chosen state winners of the 1974 national irrigated corn contest. The Silliman farm produced 199.75 bushel per acre.

The Sillimans', who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, are also the parents of two married children, John, who lives next door and assists his father in farming, and a daughter, Yvonne. They have two grandchildren and are anxiously awaiting the birth of a third grandchild in July.

The following are some of Mrs. Silliman's favorite recipes:

Lemon Cheese Cake

1 8-oz. package of cream cheese
1 large can Milnot (or other dairy-soya blend), chilled
1 small box lemon gelatin
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup sugar

Combine gelatin, juice and sugar in sauce pan. Beat until dissolved. Sit aside to cool.

Beat cream cheese and Milnot in separate bowls. Blend Milnot with cream cheese.

Add gelatin mixture and pour into graham cracker crust (recipe follows) and refrigerate until firm.

Graham Cracker Crust

3 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 stick margarine

Mix and pat into pan.

Southern Sweet Potatoes

Cook 4 to 6 medium size sweet potatoes until tender. Drain off water. Add ½ cup sugar. Mash or beat until tender. Cover large marshmallows with potatoes, roll in angel flake coconut, then in pecan pieces.

Chicken and Dumplin's

1 broiler size chicken or fryer
1 cup cream of chicken soup
1 egg
2 tbsp. shortening
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
Flour

Cook large fryer or broiling chicken.

After chicken is done remove one cup of broth for dumplings. Add one can cream of chicken soup to chicken and broth. For dumplings, mix one cup broth, egg, shortening, baking powder and salt. Add enough flour to make stiff dough. Roll out on floured board and cut into small pieces. Add to broth and cook until done.

Three-Bean Salad

1 can (1 lb.) French-style green beans drained
1 can (1 lb.) wax beans, drained
1 can (1 lb.) kidney beans, drained

½ cup chopped green onions
¼ cup snipped parsley
1 bottle (8-oz.) Italian salad dressing
1 tbsp. sugar
2 cloves garlic, crushed
Crisp lettuce

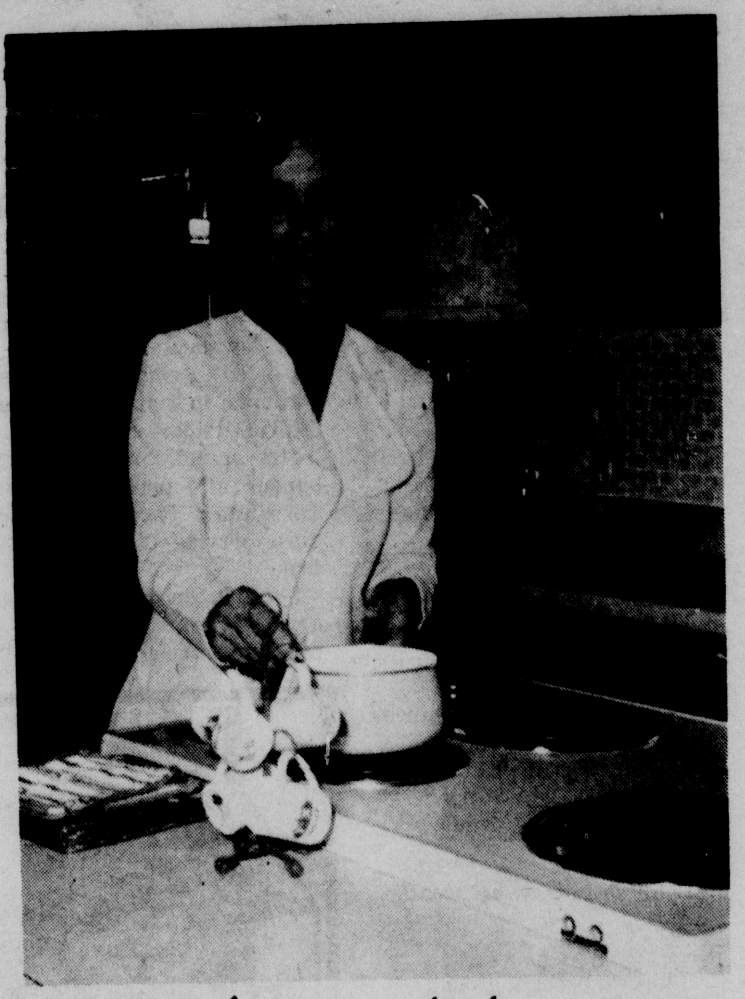
Combine beans, onions, and parsley in large bowl. Combine dressing, sugar and garlic. Pour over bean mixture and toss. Cover and refrigerate for three hours.

Ben-Ghotti

3 lb. ground beef
2 onions
1 green pepper
1 10-oz. package noodles
1 small jar pimentoes
2 small cans mushrooms
1 small can garden peas
1 small can tomato sauce
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown together ground beef, onions and pepper. Cook noodles until tender. Place meat mixture in casserole dish and add noodles, pimentoes, mushrooms, peas, tomato sauce and salt and pepper to taste.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes.



At home in kitchen

Connie Silliman, one of Stoddard County's good cooks, enjoys the kitchen in the family's new home at Dexter Route Three. Cooking comes naturally for Mrs. Silliman, who is proud of being a farmer's daughter and now a farmer's wife. (Daily Standard photo)

Escarole soup

Delicious, nutritious

Just about this time of year, one gets a yen for a bite of green, leafy vegetables. Luckily, if you know what to look for in the market, this taste can be satisfied.

Take escarole, for instance, the delightful green with ruffly leaves and a slightly bitter taste. If not acquainted with this delicious green, ask any produce man to point it out. Then make a crisp, fresh escarole green salad; or try cooked escarole in the Italian fashion.

Fresh escarole soup is a savory soup from Italy, quite easy to make. Canned chicken broth can be used for the liquid. Cook the shredded or chopped escarole in it with onion and tomato for constrating taste. That will give a soup well-laced with green, fresh-tasting leaves. Don't forget the bay leaf and a generous amount of pepper to give this soup the authentic Italian touch.

Fresh Escarole Soup

2 tsp. butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped fresh onion
3 cans (13 ¾ ounces each) chicken broth
1 bay leaf
1 tomato, cut in wedges
4 cups shredded or chopped escarole
⅛ tsp. pepper

In a large saucepan melt butter; add onion and cook until tender. Add chicken broth, bay leaf, tomato, escarole and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes, or until escarole is tender.

Makes: 4 to 6 servings.

Cinnamon rolls are tasty treat

Cinnamon Rolls

2 pkgs. dry granular yeast or 1 cake compressed yeast
¼ cup luke warm water
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
¾ cup milk, scalded
2 eggs, beaten
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup oleo, melted

Soften yeast in luke warm water with ½ tsp. sugar. Let stand 10 minutes. Add remaining sugar and salt to hot milk, stir and cool to luke warm.

Combine softened yeast with cooled milk mixture and stir well.

Add eggs and half the flour and beat until smooth. Beat in cooled oleo, then add remaining flour and stir thoroughly. Turn out on lightly floured wax paper. Knead until smooth, using not more than ¼ cup additional flour. Round up into smooth ball. Place in greased bowl and turn once to bring greased side to top.

Cover with wax paper and clean towel. Let rise in a warm place (about 86 degrees) until doubled in bulk. (about 1½ to 2 hours)

Then turn dough out onto lightly floured plastic dough sheet into a rectangle. Spread oleo on dough, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and roll up like a jelly roll. Seal edges and cut into slices, about one-inch wide. Place on greased baking pans. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk.

Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 to 18 minutes. Cool five minutes.

Spread with icing made of confectioners sugar, a little milk and oleo.

Makes about 24 rolls. This dough can also be used for coffee cake and spread with an icing of confectioners sugar, peanut butter, milk and oleo.

Be careful with food

By PAT GROJEAN

Food poisoning and spoilage germs don't get into food under their own power. They hitchhike on an insect, a worker's hand, or by some other means of transportation.

A food-borne illness can start, even when conditions are absolutely spotless. For example, a person working with food while suffering from a cold or open sore can trigger an outbreak of food-borne illness. So can food kept out of the refrigerator or freezer too long. Perhaps the food brought into the clean kitchen was already contaminated.

Illnesses from food are often not recognized as resulting from food eaten 24 or 72 hours ago. Symptoms are very much like what is grouped under "the flue"--nausea, stomach cramps and diarrhea. Only when they are severe enough are they recognized as resulting from food.

There are two types of food-borne illnesses. Food infection is an illness resulting from eating or drinking food containing harmful organisms taken into the gastro-intestinal tract. Food intoxication is an illness resulting from eating or drinking food in which bacteria have grown previously and developed a toxin or poison.

The dangerous culprits are salmonella, streptococci, staphylococci, cloistridium botulinum and clostridium perfringens bacteria.

Salmonella and streptococcus bacteria cause food infection, with salmonella being the most common. Flies, cockroaches, rats and mice that come in contact with raw food may carry this bacteria. Humans transfer these bacteria to ingredients and prepared food by unclean hands or by contact with soiled work surfaces and equipment. Foods commonly infected include meat, poultry and eggs, but the bacteria are killed by boiling temperatures.

Staphylococci are commonly found on the skin and in the respiratory tract of many healthy individuals and still cause some cases of food poisoning. They most frequently occur when food has been improperly handled after cooking. Boiling temperatures do not destroy the toxins, but do destroy the cells.

Botulism is a food poisoning caused by the toxin from an organism found in the soil. Although few cases are reported, it is a public health hazard because it is frequently fatal.

Clostridium botulinum forms heat resistant spores that are widely distributed. They grow in low-acid and non-acid foods without air, as in sealed food cans.

A poisonous toxin is produced that is odorless, tasteless, colorless and invisible to the eye. These spore forming organisms can be destroyed by extreme heat, pressure cooker 240 degree to 250 degrees temperatures, and sufficient time to process each food.

Symptoms may occur anytime from 12 to 36 hours after eating the food. The individual becomes dizzy, has blurred vision and muscular weakness. He has difficulty in swallowing, speech and breathing.

Clostridium perfringens bacteria are present in soil and contaminate both raw and cooked meat products. They grow rapidly at temperatures of 110 to 116 degrees.

Authorities recommend that meat be cooked to an internal temperature of 150 degrees F. and cooled quickly to below 40 degrees F and then kept cold to prevent bacterial growth.

When meat is reheated, heat it rapidly to temperatures of 150 degrees F. or above. Always boil gravy before it is served.

Symptoms of this food poison are diarrhea, acute abdominal pain and nausea. Vomiting may also occur and continue for a period of 6 to 12 hours.

Prevent food poisoning with careful handling

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure". Preventing contamination of food and utensils is a real challenge.

Steps that can be taken by each person to prevent food infection include the following.

Wash hands often with soap and warm water and dry hands with paper towel or hot air.

Don't touch your face, mouth, or hair with your clean hands.

Don't handle food if you have sores on your face, hands or arms.

Don't lick your fingers or use the cooking spoon to taste while preparing food.

Don't eat raw cookie dough or cake batter, they contain raw eggs.

Wash dishes in hot sudsy water.

Don't allow the dish water to become a greasy mess. Dishes remain grimy and unsanitary and bacteriiu may grow.

Pick up glasses at the base, cups and silver by the handles.

Wash your hands before sitting down to meal.

Keep all pests or pets out of the kitchen.

For the equipment remember that the time food remains in the danger zone (at 40 to 150 degrees) is cumulative. If something is refrigerated at intervals, the total time out of the refrigerator should not exceed two hours.

Keep steam tables and foods at 150 degrees or higher to prevent bacterial growth.

Wash hands thoroughly after handling raw meat or poultry.

Keep kitchen tables and counters clean.

Don't purchase or use commercially canned foods if can is bulged or dented along side seams, if it shows signs of seepage or if it has an off-odor of foams when opened.

Don't buy cracked or dirty eggs.

Don't use leftover food if either discoloration, off-odor or mold is apparent. Recook any leftover food held in the refrigerator 36 hours or longer.

Don't serve mayonnaise-based salads that cannot be kept in refrigerator.

Refrigerate ground meat and cooked foods in shallow pans to promote quick cooking.

Keep frozen foods frozen, and cook frozen vegetables while still icy.

Keep frozen meats, including turkey and chicken in a 40 degree F. refrigerator during thawing.

Cool hot foods rapidly.

Don't allow turkey or chicken stuffing to stand more than a total of two hours in the dangerous temperatures.

Don't allow raw poultry or meat to come in contact with other foods, especially those eaten raw.

New Madrid cook known for good food

By NADINE S. TOWNSEND

NEW MADRID — "Good food is more important than table decorations" declares Mrs. John Edwards, 801 Mitchell St., an accomplished cook who is equally recognized for her attractive table settings.

"I start with the menu first," she said, when planning for a special occasion or entertaining friends.

Terming herself a "collector of things", Mrs. Edwards chooses assorted items from her collecting hobby to appoint her table and plans the color theme and decorations for the season or to fit the occasion.

For eye appeal, Mrs. Edwards said, a centerpiece of fresh cut flowers is the "crowning touch". From early spring until late fall she creates her centerpieces of appropriate color and design from the beautiful flowers and foliage in her yard. Only during Christmas and Thanksgiving holidays does she use fresh flowers from a florist.

In the winter months candles are added to the table setting but she prefers less elaborate decorations in the summer, such as a simple centerpiece, a dish of fruit or any small decorative touch that blends or coordinates with the mood or atmosphere.

A typical summer luncheon menu planned by Mrs. Edwards to serve her bridge club includes:

Watermelon balls on green ice (frozen green colored water crushed in ice crusher)

Fresh tomato stuffed with chicken salad, served on bed of lettuce

Lima beans

Hot rolls - iced tea

For the light, informal luncheon, Mrs. Edwards chooses a table cloth in a cool shade of blue with matching lace border. Poppy Trail dinnerware designed with sculptured pale blue grapes, harmonizing blue stemware and a centerpiece of shaded pink zinnias will complete the table setting.

The following recipe for chicken breasts makes a tasty dish, Mrs. Edwards said, for either a luncheon or dinner fare.

Chicken Breasts

2 or 3 cups chicken breasts
1 can chicken soup
1 pkg. sour cream
½ cup bread crumbs
½ cup cracker crumbs
¼ stick butter
2 tbsp. poppy seeds

Stew chicken breasts without salt until done, then cut in large chunks. Mix sour cream as directed on package and combine with chicken soup, add chicken and mix well. Place in greased casserole. Top with bread and cracker crumbs, butter and poppy seeds. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Planning menu

Mrs. John Edwards, 801 Mitchell St., New Madrid enjoys reading cook books and magazines for new recipes and the latest tips and tricks for table settings in which she can use her collectibles and cut flowers from her yard.

Orange juice flavors hens

½ tsp ginger
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tbsp. of lemon juice

3 or 4 rock cornish hens

Mix the first eight ingredients for marinade. Pour marinade over hens and let stand for at least one hour. Remove hens from marinade, reserving marinade.

Secure whole hens on spit or split hens and place on grill. Cook for one hour turning and basting frequently with reserved varinade. Allow one hen for each serving.

Down to earth cooking favored

By FRANK WATSON

BENTON--Mrs. Mary Louise Scherer seemed a little flustered. Recipes were spread in disarray on the kitchen table as she looked through cabinets and cookbooks for one particular relish recipe, with no luck.

She looked up from a cabinet and said, "Mind if I call my mother?"

Mrs. Scherer and her mother share many recipes, and have from the time when she was a child. Mrs. Scherer was the oldest in a family with 11 children, and did much of the cooking.

"I learned a lot from my mother," she explained, "I always did like to cook."

Mrs. Scherer does not favor fancy, gourmet dishes, but, rather enjoys "just down to earth cooking. My husband is just a down to earth eater, anyway, so we just stick to that," she added.

The relish recipe she had searched for proved her claim. She acquired the recipe by phone from her mother.

"You use whatever you have on hand, usually more cucumbers than anything else. We've made it for years, and know about the right amounts," she said.

Enjoyment of cooking may run in the family—at least for the girls. Her five girls like to cook, but the three boys haven't taken much to cooking, she noted.

While her children--the youngest is a four-year-old daughter--and neighborhood children played in the yard just outside the kitchen, Mrs. Scherer volunteered to demonstrate her cooking skills by mixing a cake.

She was swift and sure in the kitchen as she gathered and mixed the ingredients, when Karen her 18-year-old daughter, who recently graduated from Kelly High School, walked in.

Mrs. Scherer suggested that Karen help prepare the cake. Mother and daughter worked well together, and completed the job without getting in one another's way.

Mrs. Mary Louise Scherer

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Thursday, June 19, 1975

The cake, mixed from scratch, took just minutes.

"I'm not one to plan a week's menu ahead of time like some" she said, "but I like to keep everything in one spot—handy." The kitchen is her own design, and features plenty of shelves, a long counter, and a door leading into an adjoining dining area.

A few days after the interview Mrs. Scherer called back, explaining that she had found the exact amount of ingredients for her relish recipe. That recipe, which she says is a family favorite, and three other recipes are included here.

She said most of the cucumbers used by her family in the pickle and relish recipes are raised in their garden. In the ice cream recipe canned milk can be substituted for cream.

Relish

3 qts. cucumbers, ground
2 cups onions, ground
4 green peppers, ground
2 red peppers, ground
3 stalks of celery, chopped
3 carrots, ground
3 tbsp. salt
2 cups vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 tsp. pickling spice

Grind all ingredients together in grinder. Sprinkle with 3 tbsp. salt to season. Let set about 10 minutes and then squeeze all juice from mixture.

Dilute vinegar with a small amount of water. Add two cups sugar and 1 tsp. pickling spice tied in a cloth bag. Add vinegar mixture to ground vegetables and heat for about 30 minutes.

Remove spice bags, pack in jars and seal.

"I'm not one to plan a week's menu ahead of time like some" she said, "but I like to keep everything in one spot—handy." The kitchen is her own design, and features plenty of shelves, a long counter, and a door leading into an adjoining dining area.

A few days after the interview Mrs. Scherer called back, explaining that she had found the exact amount of ingredients for her relish recipe. That recipe, which she says is a family favorite, and three other recipes are included here.

She said most of the cucumbers used by her family in the pickle and relish recipes are raised in their garden. In the ice cream recipe canned milk can be substituted for cream.

Relish

3 qts. cucumbers, ground
2 cups onions, ground
4 green peppers, ground
2 red peppers, ground
3 stalks of celery, chopped
3 carrots, ground
3 tbsp. salt
2 cups vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 tsp. pickling spice

Grind all ingredients together in grinder. Sprinkle with 3 tbsp. salt to season. Let set about 10 minutes and then squeeze all juice from mixture.

Dilute vinegar with a small amount of water. Add two cups sugar and 1 tsp. pickling spice tied in a cloth bag. Add vinegar mixture to ground vegetables and heat for about 30 minutes.

Remove spice bags, pack in jars and seal.

Dumplings designed for outdoor cooking

Planning family appealing, satisfying foods for serving while camping or vacationing calls for being creative with a limited number of easy-to-pack ingredients. The sweet and spicy sauce, featuring a mixture of dried fruit, simmers in a heavy skillet or Dutch oven atop a camp cook stove or a more traditional range. Lemon Fruit Flip

Quench summer thrist with lemon fruit flip

In grandma's day, Sunday afternoon was the time when friends and neighbors came calling and grandma invariably had a pitcher filled with cold lemonade, ready to serve.

To bring back that good flavor, use a lemonade flavor drink mix. It tastes like good old-fashioned lemonade--not too tart and not too sweet with 100 per cent natural lemon flavor. Simply add water. Sugar is already in. Each canister makes 10 quarts of lemonade and is easily stored on the shelf has a measuring scoop included.

To enjoy that good old-fashioned lemonade flavor in a new way, try this unusual and great tasting thirst quencher, Lemon Fruit Flip. A few whirls in a blender combines the ingredients into a smooth, creamy drink. Guests and family will think they've just had a special old-fashioned treat.

LEMON FRUIT FLIP

2 scoops lemonade flavor drink mix
1 medium ripe banana, cut in chunks
¼ cup water
2 cups crushed ice
2 tbsp. light rum (optional)

Combine drink mix, banana, and water in blender container, and blend until smooth. Add crushed ice and rum; blend until ice is almost melted.

Makes 2 cups or 4 servings.

Summer is for outdoor cooking

Summer is a picnic in Southeast Missouri! Whether you move to the terrace, pack a basket and take to the wilds, or light of the grill in the backyard, summer is great for outdoor living.

Eating outdoors offers a happy, friendly, relaxing way to feed family and friends.

Meals cooked and eaten outdoors appeal to almost everyone. The fresh air, plus the sight and aroma of meat sizzling, vegetables roasting, and fruit cooking over hot coals, sharpens the appetites.

Outdoor meals need as careful planning as other meals or types of entertaining. Don't short-change the family on health-giving proteins, vitamins and minerals. Plan a good variety of food what is quick to prepare, serve and clean up.

Equipment for outdoor cooking can be simple or elaborate. There are many types of grills on the market and each family can decide what to spend for equipment.

For the average family all that is necessary is a portable grill that is adjustable and has a durable firebox.

Flimsy equipment can be dangerous since it tips over easily. If the grill itself is not secure, the meat may fall into the fire.

Accessories needed include asbestos gloves for hot skewers and testing and turning foil-wrapped packages, basting brush with long handle, two pairs of long-handed tongs (one for turning meat and one for charcoal), long-handled salt and pepper shakers, long-handled spatula, sharp knives, cotton gloves for handling briquets, cutting board for carving, serving spoons, paper towels and holding forks.

The kind of meal prepared and served depends upon the fire--not the equipment. A complete failute can result even with the most expensive equipment, if the fire is wrong.

Select a place away from trees. Sparks can start a fire.

Never leave a fire unattended and always have some firefighting tools handy.

For a charcoal fire, start about an hour before you are ready to cook. Do not use gasoline -- it is too dangerous around an openfire.

Pour briquets from the bag into a pile and soak them with liquid lighter fluid. When the fire is lighted, use a long match or a piece of burning paper.

As soon as the flames have disappeared and the briquets are burning, distribute them evenly under the grill where the food is to be cooked. They should be only one layer thick with each briquet about one-fourth inch apart for an ideal bed of coals.

A charcoal fire is ready for cooking when the briquets are covered with gray ash. For an even heat, tap the briquet to remove some of the ash which acts as an insulator.

One firing of charcoal will usually last for several hours of cooking.

Should a flame appear from the drippings, use a water sprinkler or water pistol to subdue the flames, but do not use too profusely.

At the close of the cooking time, dunk unburned charcoal from the grill in water, dry it and use it again. Use care to avoid scald or steam burns. Charcoal can also be smothered in a tightly covered can and reused.

Cleaning the equipment starts at the beginning of planning for a cookout. Line the bottom of the firebox with a heavy duty aluminum foil to keep it bright and smooth. Then put one-half to one inch of gravel, sand or insulation pellets over this. Add charcoal. The lining protects the firebox and reflect the heat, while the gravel or sand absorbs the drippings and lets air circulate sso the fire will burn.

As soon as the equipment is cool enough to handle, wipe the grill, spit, forks, etc. with a cloth that has been soaked in cold water. Give the equipment a good hot soapy washing then.

Any family can have a successful outdoor meal by following these simple directions.

Try something new this weekend for breakfast

A weekend breakfast is something special in most households. Sometimes, it is the only time that all family members sit down for a good hearty, leisurely meal together. Therefore, something special is always in order to surprise the family, and Orange Glazed Apples and Sausage fits the bill. It's hearty fare that not only tastes good, but is filling, nutritious, and different.

The great feature of this recipe is the combination of flavors. Apples, which are plentiful, are sauteed, then sprinkled with orange flavor instant breakfast drink and cinnamon, to give them a slightly tart but unusually good flavor. Besides being tasty, they're easy to prepare, and since the sausage and apples are done in one skillet, it also minimizes the clean-up.

To round out this meal, serve toasted English muffins, eggs and a big pitcher of orange flavored instant breakfast drink.

Orange Glazed Apples and Sausage

1 pkg. (8 oz.) brown'n serve sausages (8 to 10 links)
2 bbsp butter or margarine

Proper cookie sheet leads to good product

When selecting a cookie sheet, keep the following tips in mind.

For good circulation of heat, choose a sheet that is two inches smaller around all sides than the oven interior.

Shiny cookie sheets make for more evenly browned cookies. When using glass baking pans, always lower the oven temperature 25 degrees F., because glass hold heat longer than metal and cookies may burn.

When more than one sheet is needed to speed up baking, make one from aluminum foil by cutting pieces of foil the same size of the cookie sheet. Lay the foil flat on the table top and put cookie dough on it. As soon as the other batch of cookies is done, slip the cookies on th foil into its place.

If a cookie sheet is not available, turn a baking pan over and use the bottom.

Brown spots on the baking sheet can be avoided by greasing only the areas where dough will be dropped with oil or unsalted solid fat.

Combine crumbs, butter, peanut butter and sugar and work together until smooth.

Press mixture into a buttered 9 by 9-inch pan or a larger pan if thinner bars are desired. Melt chocolate over hot water, spread over cracker mixture, and refrigerate until firm.

Cut into squares.

Charleston women successfully combine career, employment

By SHIRLEY PRITCHETT

CHARLESTON--- Working homemakers are no longer the exception today as many women have joined the ranks of the employed to supplement family incomes. Still, it takes a special type of woman to create a happy homelife for her family and be successful in outside employment.

Mrs. Alice Billingsley and Mrs. Ada Myers of Charleston are two of Mississippi County's exceptional homemakers. Both are employed as deputy clerks in the Circuit Clerk and Recorder of Deeds Office at the court house.

Personalities of both ladies are especially adapted for public work. They are outgoing and friendly to all who visit the office, including reporters who tend to disrupt office procedures to browze through court records. Another plus for both ladies is their length of employment. Mrs. Billingsley has been in the office 15 years and Mrs. Myers for slightly more than 14 years.

Planning meals in advance and preparing extra food dishes and freezing them are methods used by Mrs. Billingsley to insure that her family has well-balanced meals.

Experience has been her best teacher and she collects recipes for future testing on her husband, S.O. Billingsley, who is employed by Friedman's Department Store in Charleston. The couple has three children, Mrs. Ann Bise of Portland, Ore., Duane Billingsley of Denver, Colo., and Diane Billingsley of Kansas City. They also have five grandchildren.

Cooking is one of her hobbies. Cakes and extra special salad dishes rank among her favorite recipes. A grade school teacher in Cairo, Ill., for six years before coming to the clerks office, Mrs. Billingsley also enjoys crocheting and needlework. Another important facet in her life is her church work at the Church of the Nazarene.

Desserts and salads are favorites of Mrs. Myers, who is the wife of Carl Myers Jr., manager of Sands Restaurant east of Charleston. The couple has three daughters, Mrs. Suzanne Warren of Charleston, Mrs. Mossie Jordon of Cape Girardeau and Julie Myers at home; and two sons, Carl W. Myers of Dallas, Tex., and Ray Myers of Memphis, Tenn.

Four grandchildren complete the immediate family and the mere mention of them brings a twinkle to "grandmother's" eyes.

One of a large family, Mrs. Myers learned to cook from her mother, whom she said would use only the best ingredients. "I love to cook, but since our family has scattered I don't do nearly as much as I used to and especially since my husband operates a restaurant," she said. Cooking is not a chore to her however, and she loves to try new recipes but, "I don't like to clean up my mess", she said with a laugh.

Although Mrs. Myers says she is not too organized when it comes to planning meals in advance, some items are prepared ahead of time and placed in the freezer for later use.

While she does not have a lot of extra time for hobbies, she is a member of the United Methodist Church and serves as a substitute Sunday School teacher. She is also a member of the Wesleyen Circle and the Wednesday Night Bible Study Group of her church; and belongs to a neighborhood group who make up a canasta-chili club.

Coffee breaks in the office often--mean a special treat to anyone who happens by. Both women bake cookies and other goodies and share freely with one and all.

A few of their favorite recipes have been included in this year's Daily Standard cookbook. Mrs. Myers recipes are listed first. The beef and vegetable casserole and all following that recipe were contributed by Mrs. Billingsley.

Cookies: Hints for baking, storage, mailing

Baking successfully

Baking cookies can be a hassle, but there are ways to insure perfect cookies almost everytime.

Always use cookie sheets with very low sides, so that browning is uniform. If possible, bake cookie only in the center of the oven.

Keep in mind that cookies bake quickly. A good rule is to check them when the minimum baking time nears and never trust your memory. Always keep a clock or timer handy.

Take cookies from the oven when they are just done and remove them from the sheet. If the cookies stick to the pan, return them to the oven for one minute and then remove them from the pan as soon as they are taken out of the oven the second time.

Ever wonder when the cookies are done? Bar cookies are done when the sides shrink slightly from the pan or the top springs back when touched lightly with the finger. Crisp cookies are ready to eat when they are fairly firm and lightly browned around the edges.

Take cookies from the sheet with a wide metal spatula and place them on a wire rack to cool. Never stack, pile, or overlap warm cookies.

Storing

If storing cookies is your problem here aer some hints:

Never store soft and crisp cookies in the same cookie jar.

Crisp cookies keep best in a container with a loose fitting cover. If cookies become limp, they can be freshened in a warm oven at 250 degrees F. for five minutes. This is also good for freshening cookies on days when it rains.

Soft cookies and bars should be stored in a tightly covered container or right in the baking pan covered with aluminum foil.

If cookies become dry, a fresh apple or orange will help mellow and moisten them. The fruit should be removed after a day or two

Freezing

Bake too many cookies? Want to save them for a rainy day? Here are some ways to freeze them without losing flavor.

Most baked cookies may be placed in plastic bags, tin cans, or wrapped in foil or plastic wrap, but fragile cookies need to be placed carefully in freezer containers to prevent breakage. When ready to use, leave them in the covered container until they are completely thawed to keep out excess moisture. Baked cookies stay fresh up to 12 months in the freezer.

Unbaked cookie dough will last up to six months in a freezer container. Before freezing, however, shape the dough as directed in the recipe and then quick-freeze it one hour on a baking sheet. Then seal it in a freezer container.

Do not unthaw the frozen cookie dough before baking. Place the dough in a moderate oven and bake as directed.

Mailing

Mailing cookies can be a real problem.

The first step in being a successful mailer is to select the right cookie. Cookies that go through the mail well are cake type, chewy, and bar.

Avoid chocolate and soft candies, crisp cookies that are easily crushed, and fruit and chocolate cookies that melt or mold under hot, humid conditions. Nuts are likely to deteriorate also.

Bar cookies should be baked on a sheet that fits the size of the box they will be shipped in. Baking in foil pans facilitates this.

Coffee and potato chip cans lined with plastic bags and filled with individually wrapped cookies work well. The lid should be securely taped down. A brown paper bag works well as an outside wrapper.

Strong cardboard boxes lined with aluminum foil are fine for shipping cookies. A cushion of crumpled wax paper or cellophane straw should be used on the bottom.

Empty spaces can be filled in with individually wrapped hard candies, gum, or other gifts. Drop cookies should always be individually wrapped, also, in plastic wrap or wax paper.

Pack cookies snugly in rows, then pour popped corn or tuck crushed wax paper into the spaces to prevent breakage.

Each layer of cookies shoul be covered with a cushion of wax paper or a paper towel. Remember to put a thick cushion on th top before closing the lid.

The final step is to tape the box shut, and print the address plainly on the top of the box. Label it "Food -- Fragile -- Handle With Care."

Avoid chocolate and soft candies, crisp cookies that are easily crushed, and fruit and chocolate cookies that melt or mold under hot, humid conditions. Nuts are likely to deteriorate also.

Bar cookies should be baked on a sheet that fits the size of the box they will be shipped in. Baking in foil pans facilitates this.

Coffee and potato chip cans lined with plastic bags and filled with individually wrapped cookies work well. The lid should be securely taped down. A brown paper bag works well as an outside wrapper.

Strong cardboard boxes lined with aluminum foil are fine for shipping cookies. A cushion of crumpled wax paper or cellophane straw should be used on the bottom.

Empty spaces can be filled in with individually wrapped hard candies, gum, or other gifts. Drop cookies should always be individually wrapped, also, in plastic wrap or wax paper.

Pack cookies snugly in rows, then pour popped corn or tuck crushed wax paper into the spaces to prevent breakage.

Each layer of cookies shoul be covered with a cushion of wax paper or a paper towel. Remember to put a thick cushion on th top before closing the lid.

The final step is to tape the box shut, and print the address plainly on the top of the box. Label it "Food -- Fragile -- Handle With Care."

Serve Southern breakfast with fruited hoe cakes

Indulge the family with some Southern hospitality this Sunday by serving Fruited Hoe Cakes. They're a good change from the usual pancakes and waffles. The convenient five flavorful fruits of canned fruit cocktail add extra sparkle that will make breakfast a treat for everyone. So easy and yet so special--you'll be sure to get requests for more.

Fruited Hoe Cakes

1 can (17-oz.) fruit cocktail
⅛ tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup honey
1 ¼ cups white cornmeal
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup boiling water
2 tbs. butter

Drain fruit, reserving syrup. Set aside ½ cup drained fruit cocktail Place remaining fruit cocktail in saucepan with reserved fruit syrup, cinnamon and honey. Heat to boil. Serve warm with hoecakes.

For hoecakes: Combine cornmeal and salt in mixing bowl. Pour boiling water in a slow thin stream into cornmeal mixture; beating until batter is smooth. Fold in ½ cup reserved fruit cocktail.

Melt 1 tbs. butter in heavy skillet over high heat. For each hoe cake scoop 2 tbsp. of batter into skillet and flatten into 4-inch rounds. Reduce heat to low, cook 2 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Repeat. Keep hoecakes warm until serving time.

Makes about 8 hoecakes.

Planning insures success

Nutritious, attractive and flavorful meals are the goals of every woman interested in the well-being of those who depend upon her for food.

In planning meals be sure to keep in mind to include foods representing each of the four basic food groups--milk group, meat group, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals.

Keep the following points in mind when planning meals for the family.

Consider the nutrition needs of the group for the day and their likes and dislikes.

Include a variety of foods each day and from day to day introduce a new food from time to time.

Vary flavors and textures. Contrast strong flavor with mild, sweet with sour. Combine crisp textures with smooth.

Try to have some meat, poultry, fish, eggs, milk or cheese at each meal.

Make a collection of nutritious recipes that the family enjoys and serve them often.

Brighten food with color--a slice of red tomato, a sprig of dark greens, or other garnish.

Combine different sizes and shapes of food in a meal when possible.

Consider whether or not a food is appropriate to the season or weather.

Keep in mind the time required and the equipment available for preparation of each item.
